ITALIAN FLEET SMASHED

SEVEN WARSHIPS BLASTED BY BRITISH FLIERS

BOMBS SMASH ITALIAN FLEET

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—British naval bombers in a smashing attack on Italy's main naval base at Taranto, have seriously crippled two battleships and probably severely damaged a third, with the result that only half of the Italian navy's six capital ships remains effective, the British admiralty announced today.

In addition, two cruisers and two fleet auxiliaries were damaged, an Admiralty communique said.

Still another British naval victory at the expense of Italy was reported by the Admiralty later in the day. The Admiralty said British warships sank an Italian supply ship, set two others aflame, damaged another, and blasted an Italian destroyer in an attack off Valona, Albania, Monday night.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill smilingly read the admiralty's communique in Commons and hailed the action as a "decisive" blow and a "glorious Particularly will the damage inflicted on Il Duce's navy facilitate British aid to Greece in the eastern Mediterranean, observers pointed out.

"The Royal Navy has struck a crippling blow at the Italian fleet," the communique stated.

The navy airmen, it stated, at-

Gandhi Group Invites Arrest in War Protest

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 13 (AP)—The working committee of the All-India Congress (Nationalist Party) has decided, it was revealed today from Wardha, to order nearly 1500 members to invite arrest in the party's civil disobedience campaign against British war measures.

It was not disclosed whether Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of the party, would invite arrest himself, but his participation was not expected.

Churchill Cheered On Victory Speech

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 13—A major victory for British naval planes over important units of the Italian fleet at Taranto, which "affects decisively the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean," was described to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Winston Churchill this afternoon.

Confirming an admiralty announcement that at least six and possibly seven Italian warships were severely damaged in an attack by planes of the fleet air arm upon the Taranto naval base, Churchill said:

"I have some news for the House.

"It is good news.

"The result of action by the fleet air arm against the Italian fleet at Taranto affects decisively the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean."

CHURCHILL CHEERED

"The Royal Navy has struck a crippling blow to the Italian fleet.

"Total strength of the Italian battle fleet was six battleships.

"These consisted of two of the Littoria class which had just been put into service and were among the world's most powerful. Four were of the recently reconstructed Cavour class.

"This fleet on paper was considerably more powerful than our Mediterranean fleet, but had consistently refused to accept battle.

"On the night of Nov. 11-12, when the main units of the Italian fleet were lying behind shore batteries at the naval base of Taranto, our aircraft of the fleet air arm attacked their stronghold.

"Reports from our airmen have been confirmed by photographic reconnaissance.

"It is now established that one battleship of the Littoria class is now so badly down by the bows that her forecastle is under water.

"She has a heavy list to starboard.

"One battleship of the Cavour class has been beached and her stern, up to and including the after turret, is under water.

"This ship has also heavily

Londoners Shun Raid Shelter And Save Lives

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The members of one London family are alive today because they were so "fed up" with dampness in their private, backyard air raid shelter they decided to sleep in their house last night.

During the night, a German bomb scored a direct hit on their shelter, destroying it.

FBI AND DIES GROUP AGENTS PROBE ARMS PLANT BLASTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (INS)—Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Dies Committee on un-American activities today swung into investigations of possible sabotage in a series of explosions and fires at plants producing national defense supplies.

Gravely concerned over the sudden outburst of plant destruction in widely-separated sections of the nation, war and navy officials, meanwhile, were considering plans to redouble the productive work in cooperation with the Department of Justice.

C. A. Tolson, executive assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, conferred at the White House with Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early. Tolson declined to say what had been discussed, though it was presumed the conference dealt with the series of explosions.

There was speculation over whether President Roosevelt would ask Congress to authorize another increase in the FBI force. About 150 agents were added recently, giving the FBI about 500 men.

With production of national defense goods now beginning on a large scale and contracts for billions of dollars worth of material having been let in recent weeks, government officials emphatically warned that defense against sabotage must be given primary consideration.

Agents of the FBI have been assigned to many plants producing strategic items, "bottlenecks" in the defense machinery are being guarded, and it was said the Dies Committee is giving valuable aid in turning up subversive forces, which may be linked with sabotage attempts.

SOLDIER GUARD SEEN

Possibility that Home Guard forces authorized recently by Congress will be called into service to police vital defense plants, was considered. In military circles it was suggested that a law by Congress requiring every one to be fingerprinted would be helpful. All aliens are now required to register and be fingerprinted under an act of Congress, it was noted.

The FBI began an immediate investigation into the Trojan Powder Co. blast at Allentown, N. J., where three men were killed when a terrific explosion wrecked a building in which they were working.

Army and Navy officials noted that the major plant destruction in recent weeks had been at places

Curley Hurls Job Seekers At Tobin

Nobody said outright that this was by way of transferring the headache to Mayor Tobin's brow, but a notice was tacked today on the door of Room 804 at 24 School st., which has been occupied by the "Roosevelt-Wallace Finance Committee, James M. Curley, director."

The notice, dated Nov. 12, read:

"The employment manager at Camp Devens, Peter Allen, who was favorably disposed to men recommended by this office, has been removed from his position.

"The new employment manager, Kenneth Allen, is friendly to Mayor Tobin of Boston and all persons seeking work at Camp Devens should apply to Mayor Tobin, either directly or through your city councilman."

BUCK PASSING CHARGED

The room has been kept open since election because of the press of man, reportedly at least 2100, seeking to obtain letters of introduction from Curley to contacts at Fort (not Camp) Devens.

Well, anyway, within an hour after the notice was posted, seven men arrived at Mayor Tobin's office from 24 School st., but each was told by Angelo Berlandi, one of the mayor's secretaries:

"Curley is passing the buck. It appears that the supply of jobs is exhausted. His own son is still working up there on a good job.

"If Curley is sincerely anxious to put somebody to work, why doesn't he give one of you men that job."

Berlandi further asserted that the mayor's office has no job contact at Ft. Devens and that no-

Move to Force Congress Quit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Speaker Rayburn said today a vote would be taken Tuesday on adjournment of the present session of Congress.

Democratic leaders have sent word to their members in both Senate and House to be here on that day, Rayburn said. Republican leaders have announced they would attempt to defeat adjournment and hold this Congress in session until the new one convenes in January, because of the international situation.

The House will agree to the adjournment resolution "if we can get the fellows back here," Rayburn said. He had declared previously that legislative work was finished for this session and there was no reason why Congress should remain here.

MRS. MARGARET KELLY HALL
Battles Husband's Love Balm Suit

Doctor Under Quiz in Trial Of Balm Suit

Actions of her husband were bringing Mrs. Margaret Kelley Hall to a nervous breakdown, it was testified today in Superior court by Dr. Adam E. Cole of Swampscott, defendant in a $25,000 alienation of affections suit brought by the husband.

In the suit, on trial before Judge Jesse M. Morton and a jury, Walter S. Hall, Boston bank clerk and for years associated in the management of Boston dance halls, accuses the doctor of stealing Mrs. Hall's affections and persuading her to leave home.

Called to the witness stand today, after Mrs. Hall had made a brief third-day appearance, Dr. Cole testified that he told Mrs. Hall, a former beauty prize winner, to "go home and have children" as a means of alleviating her nervous condition.

The doctor, in answer to questions, said he attended St. Anselm's, Boston College, a college of Osteopathy in Philadelphia and the Middlesex College of Physicians and Surgeons.

TELLS OF TREATMENT

He is a specialist, he said, in proctology and the tonsils, and is a surgeon on the staff of the Dover Street Rectal Clinic.

He first met Mrs. Hall, the doctor testified, when she visited his office at Swampscott in 1931 in regard to her health.

"She was in a high state of nervousness—also had bad tonsils," the doctor said.

Q—Did you operate on her? A—Yes.

Q—What did you do? A—Well, treatment for tonsils, also osteopathic treatment.

Q—How did you treat her for nervousness? A — By correcting the lesions that existed in the spine.

Q—Now what did you do with your hands?

GIVES DEMONSTRATION

Dr. Cole rose from the witness chair and stood up as Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien approached after his question. In demonstration, the doctor placed his hands on the law-

1 SHOT, 2 SEIZED IN HOLDUP WAVE

One man was dying, two others were in jail, and extra details of police were seeking three more today following a series of breaks and holdups in Boston and Concord liquor stores.

A man identified by Concord police as Pasquale Giglio, 23, of Haynes st., East Boston, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by Patrolman J. Almon Heylinger of that town as he and two other East Boston youths allegedly staged a break in the Condon liquor store, Commonwealth ave., West Concord.

Giglio was taken to Emerson Hospital, Concord, where doctors said the bullet had punctured his right lung, and placed his name on the danger list. A police guard was put over his bed.

The other two, identified as Frank Petrivelli, 18, also of Haynes st., and Donald G. Rockwell, 20, of Border st., pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering in the night and larceny before Judge Howard A. Wilson in Concord district court later.

Judge Wilson bound them over to the grand jury and they went to East Cambridge Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail each.

Officer Heylinger discovered the break when he noticed an auto

W. C. Fields' Wham-Bang Love Row Revealed at Trial

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13—Clang, clang, clang! What is this noise, chum—Bill Fields being sued again? No, it is not the flannel-nose comedian, the two-quart man, giving out a rye smile this time. It's the progeny of an old, second-hand suit—or a cut-down, as you might say, that W. C. Fields settled in the long ago.

CARLOTTA MONTI

Even when not in trouble, the insouciant W. C. Fields can't keep out of it and today the State Supreme Court had taken under advisement the recommended disbarment of a lawyer who allegedly fudged a bit in paying over the Fields settlement.

That was to beauteous Carlotta Monti, sometime actress, sometime Bill Fields' little chickadee, secretary, dietician and ouija-board confidante.

W. C. Fields

WHACKED PIGEON

A bad boy, Bill Fields, was on the night of Sept. 23, 1937, and his little pigeon said he whacked her on the head with a rubber hammer and broke a walking stick on her permanent.

This was but a nightcap, it was brought out in court for the ruddy nosed comedian and Carlotta, his chickadee, had battled on the way home to Fields' Bel-Air mansion.

On arrival they got into a jam with the butler (Jeeves?) and baffled police made two breathless but futile trips to Fun House.

"Ah, trouble," exclaimed Fields when informed later that Carlotta was suing him for $200,000. "Trouble—and an ample bit of it, to be sure.

"Yes, yes! A legal sashweight! A bowie knife whipped out! Well, let her sue. I've been sued before—by experts."

But Fields settled the suit, and out of the settlement grew the Supreme Court case, with the California Bar Ass'n asking disbarment of Carlotta's counsel, Clifford A. Rohe.

It had been learned—when Fields and Carlotta subsequently reconciled and compared notes—the court was told, that Rohe reported a settlement of only $5000 to Carlotta, although Fields had settled for $6300.

"Fields," the court was told by Atty. Isaac Pacht, said he would pay $5000 and not a cent more. Miss Monti declared she had taken Fields' dictation as to her clothes and food, but this time he was going to dance to her music.

"She said she didn't care how much it was, but that Fields was going to pay more than $5000—just because he said $5000 was all he would give."

Court Held For Parolee On Stretcher

On a stretcher, drawn halfway out of an ambulance, Nicholas Lega, 20-year-old New Jersey penitentiary parolee, pleaded innocence to a charge of unarmed robbery today before Judge Robert Walcott of East Cmabridge District Court.

Lega, wounded in the back on Armistice Day by Patrolman Bernard Gibbons of Cambridge, who accused of attacking Miss Jean Molcette, 28, of Harvard st., Cambridge, and trying to wrest her purse from her.

Gibbons fired one shot in the air as the man fled, he said, and then a second, which brought the alleged assailant down.

Judge Walcott, on hearing from Police Chief Timothy A. Leahy that Lega had a long record in New Jersey and was on parole on a seven-year breaking and entering charge in that state, held Lega in $20,000 bail for hearing on Nov. 20.

F. D. SAYS NATION WILL FIND TRUE STRENGTH IN UNITY

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Pleading anew for national unity, President Roosevelt today pledged that throughout his third term he would "work shoulder to shoulder with all who place true Americanism above all other considerations."

Mr. Roosevelt was moved to issue a statement of appreciation of the many thousands of congratulatory messages which have poured into the White House since election and he noted with particular satisfaction that many pledging support came from those who had not voted for him.

Expressions of support "from sincere men and women who did not cast votes for the Administration," declared the President, "reflect a spirit of national unity in essential things that is most welcome."

"In unity we shall find our true strength."

Secretary Stephen T. Early said that extra clerks had been taken on and were doing their best to respond to these messages but found themselves swamped. He reported that they were still arriving in mail sacks by the thousands.

President Roosevelt's statement of appreciation follows:

"In the face of a constantly mounting number of congratulatory messages, I feel that I must, in this statement, extend my hearty thanks to all who have thus remembered me.

"I am heartened and encouraged by all these messages of good will from thousands of well wishers.

"No less appreciated than the others are the pledges of loyalty and support received from sincere men and women who did not cast their votes for the administration. These messages, in particular, reflect a spirit of national unit in essential things which is most welcome. In union we shall find our true strength.

"To all who have sent their greetings I give this assurance of gratitude and heartfelt appreciation. In acknowledging these pledges of loyal support and full cooperation in forwarding the interests of the nation, I pledge anew my determination to work shoulder to shoulder with all who place true Americansism above all other considerations."

This afternoon, despite the inclement weather, it was expected that President Roosevelt would board the White House yacht and cruise down the Potomac river to "bury himself" for three or four days of complete rest.

BOY SCOUT CHIEF ILL

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Lord Baden-Powell, 82-year-old head of British Boy Scouts and lineal descendant of the early American settler John Smith, is ill in Kenya, South Africa, according to reports reaching here today.

YOU GOTTA GET UP—Getting ready for Army life are Herbert Gustav Gatterer, 24, and Kenneth P. Sullivan, 22, both of Dorchester, who volunteered for a year's service in the Army. Accepted by Board 30 in Dorchester, they are both graduates of Bowdoin college. Gatterer, an Austrian, has been in this country for a year.

PARADES, FESTIVALS URGED FOR DRAFTEES

Adjt.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, head of this State's Selective Service program, today suggested to local draft boards in 173 districts that they honor their first draftees with festivals and parades.

He made this suggestion in line with the reception that is to be tendered the 532 men in the first draft quota at the Hall of Flags in the State House next Sunday evening.

"It is only fitting that this historic occasion, the actual departure of the men from their home communities for induction into the nation's first peacet-ime draft army, should be marked by appropriate ceremony and exercises," Adjt.-Gen. Erickson said.

IN PUBLIC HALLS

The selective service director suggested that preliminary exercises be held in public halls or other places of that type and that veteran and local military units be asked to co-operate, with band and drum corps to supplement exercises.

On the day of the men's departure from me, the suggestion is that there be parades—in larger communities a joint parade with all boards joined—and that drafters be given auto transportation to induction points.

Local boards have now received copies of the induction orders applicable to each man selected. The order comes from "The President of the United States."

ALREADY NOTIFIED

Most of those who will go into the Army on Nov. 18, 19, 20 and 22 have already been notified of their selection and many have been passed by local examiners for their physical examinations.

Among the contenders for first honors in being accepted were volunteers from East Boston, Dorchester and the city proper.

In East Boston, these were Rocco Caristo, 27, of Princeton st., and Peter Amico, 24, of Harvard st., both unemployed. In Dorchester, Chairman Patrick J. Connelly of District 20 announced the following had passed:

John C. Truehart, 30, of Bowdoin st.; Herbert G. Gatterer, 24, of Westville st., and Kenneth P. Sullivan, 22, also of Westville st. The first is unemployed, the second an insurance clerk, the third a teacher.

Downtown District 16 has accepted Joseph Homer, 27, of Derne st., West End, and John Sakey, 26, of Dwight st., South End.

REPORTING ORDERS

Men who are called for the Nov. 18 and 19 contingents have already been notified and those in the later groups will all have their reporting orders within 24 hours, officials stated.

Draftees will report in Boston's South Armory at Irvington st., Back Bay, at Springfield's G. A. R. hall and at Worcester's Lamartine school. There final physical checkups will be made by army experts.

Those accepted will be sworn in, or inducted into the army, and will be sent immediately to Ft. Devens to begin their one-year training course.

92 Dead in Wake Of Mid-West Storm, Cold Wave Spreads

By the Associated Press

Diminishing winds over the Great Lakes aided heroic marine rescue efforts today while bitter cold enveloped most of the mid-continent.

Coast Guard crews battled Lake Michigan's frigid waters in an effort to keep down the death list written as boats sank or broke up under the pounding of the worst storm in years. Search for missing duck hunters was still under way.

A total of 92 known dead was reported. They included sailors, hunters, victims of snow and freezing weather and those killed in the gales that accompanied a violent storm which began in the West Sunday and swept eastward across the nation Monday and yesterday.

Two freighters and two fishing tugs were feared lost with all hands, totaling 65. These were the ferighters William B. Davock and Anna C. Minch and the tugs Indian and Richard H. The known dead so far constituted 16 bodies washed ashore near Ludington, Mich., and identified as crew members of the Davock and Minch.

17 SAILORS SAVED

Two other sailors were lost from the pulpwood carrier, Novadoc which broke up off Pentwater, Mich., but 17 members of her crew were rescued after clinging to the broken hulk for 24 hours.

The gasoline tanker, New Haven Socony, carrying 16 men, was 36 hours overdue at Muskegon, Mich. The tanker, Crudoil, which had been missing with 23 men, limped into Sturgeon Bay, Mich. A sister ship, the Mercury, with about 20 men, found shelter off North Manitou Island in northern Lake Michigan. Several other vessels were aground, but their crews apparently were in no grave danger.

HEAVY DEATH TOLL

The known death toll of 92 included 18 sailors, 27 duck hunters and 47 others. The hunters died in these states: Minnesota 12, Wisconsin 6, Iowa, 4, Illinois 3, Windsor, Ont., 2.

The death toll by states, including hunters, but excluding lake boat victims, were Minnesota 27, Illinois 11, Wisconsin 9, Iowa 8, Indiana 5, Michigan 4, Colorado 2, South Dakota 2, Ontario 2, and Oklahoma, Wyoming, New York and Kansas 1 each.

SCHOOLS CLOSED

Many Minnesota towns remained isolated by snow. All schools in Minneapolis and St. Paul and many other parts of the State were closed. Thousands of office workers in the Twin Cities spent their second night downtown last night.

Train service was uncertain and auto traffic was virtually paralyzed.

Livestock dealers reported heavy losses in the Middle West. Thousands of turkeys and sheep were frozen to death in Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska. Ranchers in the big Cimarron valley of western Colorado feared heavy losses to 10,000 head of cattle and sheep isolated by snow. They described the storm as the worst in 20 years.

Duck Hunter Tells How He Beat Death in Storm

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 13 (AP)—A graphic story of how he "went hunting for ducks and death went hunting for me" was told today by Ted Strasser, newspaper photographer, who with his brother narrowly escaped the tragic fate that overtook 11 other Minnesota hunters in Monday's terrific snowstorm.

"Death missed by the whim of a gigantic wave that tossed me within reach of shore after my duck boat sank under me," said Strasser who, with his brother, Carl, was trapped on a Mississippi river island near Wabasha when the storm broke suddenly.

Strasser described how waves three feet high were roaring down the river channel which they had to negotiate in their small duck boat before he and his brother awoke to their danger.

SAVED BY WAVE

"The task of regaining the mainland appeared hopeless," wrote Strasser. "But I knew it was our only chance. We abandoned all our equipment except our guns and pushed the duck boat off in the storm.

"Within two minutes my mittens were frozen to the oars. We were both sheathed in sleet. I was completely blinded by the storm and followed Carl's directions, desperately trying to keep the boat from swinging broadside to the waves.

"We both knew the frail craft could never survive the next mountain of water, but the boat performed that very miracle.

"We got within 100 feet of shore. The boat was half full of water and moved with the speed of a power boat on the crest of the hurtling water.

"Then the oars were literally torn from my gloved hands as we were slapped broadside. Water poured over the side and the craft sank under us.

"Then the last and biggest miracle occurred. What looked like a mountain of water literally hurled us at the shore and as the boat went down we were able to stumble through breast-deep water.

"Coated with solid chunks of ice, we managed to stumble to a farmhouse a little distance away and the good people inside took over.

"Duck hunting is lots of fun."

6 MORE IN TESTIFY JOBS QUIZ

LAWRENCE, Nov. 13—Six more witnesses, police, firemen and municipal employes, marched into the grand jury room and told their stories today in the investigation into alleged job-selling here.

What they told the jury was a secret, but an evidence of what was going on was given when a reporter asked Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg how long the investigation would last.

"I can't tell," he said. "It is certainly going to go on for several days more. It might well go into next week."

His words were significant of the scope of the probe, observers said. The grand jury had only been called for one day here and it was now on its second day.

Before this grand jury session started, result of a probe launched by Civil Service Commr. Ulysses J. Lupien, there were stories rampant that jobs in Lawrence's municipal departments had been bought for prices ranging up to $1500 and that 50 witnesses were to be called.

"Fifty?" Asst. Dist.-Atty. James C. Roy, special prosecutor, parried. "I don't know yet. There may be a million."

Roy is a 32-year-old Marblehead lawyer, appointed to this investigation by Cregg on recommendation of Commr. Lupien that the man who did the job should be "one unconnected with Lawrence politics."

CORRIDORS CLEARED

High city and state officials are under fire in the case, it was stated before this probe started.

State Police Detectives Daniel A. Murphy and William Killen, who were assigned to the investigation last winter when it was brought to the attention of Gov. Saltonstall, were on hand at this session, as they were yesterday.

All corridors, upstairs and down, were cleared. Upstairs by order of Judge Raoul Beaudreau, who is presiding, downstairs by Cregg's order.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Roy, when he went into the grand jury room, was armed with voluminous reports and transcripts of evidence given by scores of witnesses to Commr. Lupien.

Boiling Coffee Scalds Baby in Roxbury

Mrs. Margaret Galiano of Kempton st., Roxbury, was out of the kitchen only a minute or so today, but it was long enough for 21-months-old Teresa, her daughter, to pull over a perking coffee pot on herself.

The baby was raced to Children's Hospital in a police car, badly burned on the face, throat and shoulders. The Galianos live in Kempton st., Roxbury.

President to Start Several Days' Cruise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt arranged today to board the White House yacht Potomac late this afternoon for several days of cruising, fishing and relaxation in waters near Washington. He may remain on the yacht over the week-end.

Wilson would take the place of Judge William M. Prest who resigned as of Dec. 7, 1940 under the retirement act.

Born in South Boston in 1891, Wilson graduated from Boston Latin School, from Harvard College in 1914, from Harvard Law School in 1917, and since then has been a practicing attorney in Boston.

For six terms—12 years—he was a city councilor from Ward 17, Dorchester, retiring in 1939. In 1934 he was Republican candidate for district attorney of Suffolk County and in 1938 candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor.

R. G. Wilson, Jr.

He was delegate to the Republican national conventions in 1936 and 1940. He is a member of many organizations.

Next in importance was the Governor naming of Miss Margaret Dieter of 82 East Concord st., to the State board of registration of nurses to take the place of Miss Josephine Thurlow.

Miss Thurlow had served since 1919. At one time she was superintendent of Cambridge Hospital, and later chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston State Hospital. She is now superintendent of North Adams Hospital.

HENDERSON NAMED

The governor also named Alfred E. Henderson of Otis ave., Dedham, as register of probate for Norfolk county, to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of James Reynolds, whom the governor appointed a judge.

Alfred C. Walton of Chapel st., Somerville, was named clerk of Somerville District Court to succeed Daniel H. Bradley, who resigned.

Other nominations sent to the council for confirmation were:

James W. Hennessy, Fall River, trustee Bradford Durfee Textile School, succeeding Nathan Sternsher, deceased.

John A. Shea, Taunton, trustee New Bedford Textile School, succeeding John Cohalan, term expired.

SHIFTS MEDICAL POSTS

Edward Wigglesworth, Topsfield, trustee Essex County Agricultural School, succeeding Robert Choate, resigned.

Pierce H. Leavitt, Brockton, medical examiner, 1st District Plymouth County, succeeding Alphonse Budreski, term expired.

Alphonse Budreskik, Brockton, associated medical examiner, 1st District Plymouth County, succeeding Pierce H. Leavitt, resigned.

Patrick A. O'Connell and George L. Tobey, Jr., Brookline, managers, Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, reappointments.

Julia Joyce, New Bedford, master in chancery, succeeding Barnet Smola, resigned.

Aged Man Found Alive In Wilds of Maine

THE FORKS, Me., Nov. 13 (AP)—Fellow hunters found 74-year-od Horace Bigelow of Corinna alive in the wilderness today near Lake Moxie, where he apparently had been lost since last Monday.

Deputy Game Warden William Shaw said he had received a telephone call from Moxie township advising him that Bigelow had been located, but that his condition was "not good."

Recount Sought For Saltonstall

Asserting that Gov. Saltonstall was credited with "fewer votes than he actually received," the Republican state organization today filed a petition with the Boston election commission seeking a recount of the Nov. 5 election.

The petition was filed through the Republican City Committee by Miss Gertrude A. Pfau, secretary.

A minimum of 250 signatures is required for four of the Commonwealth's counties and Miss Pfau filed 716 for Suffolk.

The petition said in part:

"Persons who signed this petition believe that Gov. Saltonstall was credited with fewer votes than he actually received and that Paul A. Dever received more votes."

Girl Faints in Car, Lands in Hospital

Miss Claire Gauthier, 40, of Strathmore rd., Brookline, started for the Huntington Memorial Hospital today, but she ended up at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Miss Gauthier is employed as a bookkeeper at the Huntington Hospital, but driving down Sumner rd., Brookline, she told police, she fainted and her automobile crashed into a tree.

She was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, suffering serious injuries.

Bomb Rips Crowded Theater in London

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—German and Italian planes failed in two attempts to bomb London today, but broke through the defenses of the capital's outskirts on the third try. Other Axis planes moved with greater success against towns in Wales and the Midlands.

Rooftop watchers in the center of the city heard gunfire and exploding bombs during the third warning, but the all clear was soon sounded, indicating the raiders had been driven off again.

At least three of the attacking planes, one of them Italian, were reported shot down. The Italian plane, reports said, burst into flames over Sussex and its cargo of bombs exploded in mid-air.

Sirens were wailing in the capital even as rescue workers doggedly burrowed into the debris of buildings, including a crowded theater hit during the series of long raids last night. The dead and wounded were uncounted.

About a thousand persons were sitting in the theater when the bomb smashed through the roof of the orchestra pit and exploded below the floor level.

KING'S CHURCH HIT

The government today permitted publication of the fact that the Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields—the King's parish church off Trafalgar sq.—had been damaged in a recent raid. The Royal College of Surgeons and the Swedish church at Rotherhithe also were hit.

St. Martin's-in-the-Fields was erected in the early 18th century on the site of an earlier structure. The register of the old church still preserved, contains an entry on the baptism of Francis Bacon. Nell Gwynne, mistress of King Charles II, and Farquhar, the Restoration comedy writer, are buried there. All royal children are registered in the church at birth.

"Hundreds" of raiders were reported by observers on the southeast coast to be heading toward London only a few hours after the all clear signal had sounded the end of an all-night alarm.

DIG IN WRECKAGE

The number of casualties resulting from the London theater bombing remained uncertain as rescue workers dug in the wreckage in search of dead and injured.

At least two other London motion picture theaters were damaged by bombs during the night, but the results were not serious.

A subway station and an air raid shelter were among the other places in the capital struck by bombs. The hit on the subway tied up service temporarily, and buses were placed in operation to shuttle passengers around the damaged section.

The bright moonlight which aided the German raiders in their night attacks on England also proved a boon to the Royal Air Force, which informed sources said had bombed objectives in Germany and German-occupied territory again.

RAF SCORES HITS

Oil plants, factories and railway centers, the submarine base at Lorient on the French coast and other German "invasion bases" were heavily bombed, the ministry reported.

The British fliers, covering familiar territory, roared over the oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Cologne, the ministry's communique said, and also struck at the inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrort and railway centers and factories in the Ruhr and the Cologne neighborhood.

Docks at Flushing and Dunkirk and several German airdromes were hit, the ministry said. One British plane was lost.

British Reveal Huge Ship Loss

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, in a written answer to a question in the House of Commons today, stated that the number of merchant ships, including fishing vessels, lost by "enemy action" during the first 12 months of the war was as follows:

British, 40½ ships of 1,611,842 tons.

Allied, 103 of 474,816 tons.

Neutral, 253 of 769,212 tons.

Total, 762 of 2,855,870 tons.

Crew members and passengers lost totaled 3327. The total saved was 15,635. Total taken prisoner 1100.

He said "enemy" losses in the same period totaled 261 ships of about 1,269,000 tons.

British Blockade Extended to Syria

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP) — The British government announced today extension of its blockade to include Syria, French West Africa, Liberia, Portuguese Guinea, Madagascar and Reunion Island—territories lying on three sides of Africa.

Blockade vessels were ordered to halt ships in those zones which do not have navicerts (British certificates of prior inspection).

GREEN, F.D. MAP LABOR PEACE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—William Green discussed prospects of "labor peace" with President Roosevelt today and said afterward he had assured the Chief Executive that a committee for the American Federation of Labor would be "glad" to meet with one from the CIO to resume peace negotiations.

Green, AFL president, said he thought there had been "some improvement" in prospects that organized labor would close ranks since negotiating committees broke off discussions months ago.

He attributed this improvement to a stronger sentiment among the rank and file of union members, and to what he said was a belief that John L. Lewis, the CIO chairman, does not exercise "quite the same influence among the rank and file that he did when negotiations were carried on before."

Lewis backed Wendell Willkie in the presidential election. He said that if President Roosevelt were re-elected he would resign as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations at its meeting in Atlantic City next week. Since Mr. Roosevelt's re-election friends of Lewis have reported the labor leader would step down on schedule. He would continue as president of the United Mine Workers.—Editor's note.

Green said Mr. Roosevelt had said it would be impossible for him to attend the AFL's annual convention in New Orleans, starting Monday.

Japs Win East Indies Oil Supply

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Nov. 13 (AP)—An agreement under which Japan obtains an increase of her annual oil imports from the Netherlands East Indies from 494,000 to 1,000,000 tons, with big United States and British companies acting as importing agents, was announced here today.

The agreement was concluded between Dutch Colonial and Oil Co. officials and Tadaharu Mukai, chairman of the huge Mitsui interests and representative of Japanese oil companies, but the Standard Vacuum Oil Co. and the Rising Sun Petroleum Co., Japan subsidiary of the British Shell interests, will act as importers for the Japanese.

OWNERS CONSULTED

Officials of the Standard and Shell interests, extensive owners of East Indies oil properties and largest exporters from these islands, were consulted in the long, difficult negotiations which produced the accord.

The United States and British governments also have kept close touch with the negotiations. Japan long has desired to increase her oil imports from the Dutch islands so as to lessen her dependence on United States and British sources of supply.

In view of the large American and British interests in the East Indies oil fields, this issue threatened to raise new frictions in the Orient, especially between Britain and Japan. The Batavia agreement apparently has postponed any clash of interests.

Bombs Drive U. S. Ambulance Corps 11 From 2 Stations

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The American Ambulance Corps in Britain was bombed out of two of its stations in last night's air raid, but the personnel suffered no casualties.

A delayed action bomb forced the corps to withdraw from one station, while high explosive shattered the walls of another.

ITALIANS IN NEW ATTACK

ATHENS, Nov. 13 (INS)—Italian forces, supported by artillery and bombing planes, have launched a heavy new attack against Greek troops surrounding the southern Albanian town of Koritza, strategic Italian military base, it was reported in Athens today.

Latest advices received here said that the Fascist forces were engaged in a desperate counter-drive designed to break the near stranglehold that the Greeks have obtained on Koritza.

While results of this new fight were not yet known, other reports said the Greeks had consolidated their positions on the left and center fronts, and that earlier Italian attacks on the Macedonian front had been repulsed.

In addition, it was stated, Greek planes again bombed the Albanian port of Valona sinking three Italian cargo ships.

A Greek high command communique said that still more Italian soldiers had been taken prisoner in the Pindus mountain sector and that the Greeks had also captured large additional supplies of war materials.

The high command reported a stream of Italian wounded and prisoners was pouring back to concentration camps behind Greek forces advancing through "pillaged" villages abandoned by retreating Fascist troops.

The communique said "the number of Italians taken prisoner in Epirus is increasing," and included "wounded abandoned by the enemy."

The counter-action by reinforced Italian troops on the Koritza front led to violent fighting, but on all other sections the Greek push appeared to be moving forward.

Italian dive-bombers strafed Greek positions in an apparent prelude to still heavier Fascist attacks within the next few days. British and Greek planes replied with new attacks on Koritza, Elbasan and the port of Valona in Albania.

Britain to Get 40 U. S. Bombers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Forty of America's great four-motor bombing planes, designed for long range flying, are expected to be on their way to Britain before Christmas.

In line with President Roosevelt's new rule-of-thumb policy for splitting munitions production with the British, the bomber delivery will give the British half of the Boeing aircraft plant's output of 80 Boeing B-17C bombers by late December. Experts said the planes have range so great they easily could be flown across the Atlantic to England.

Reports persisted, meanwhile, of the release to Britain of one of the secret bombsights developed by American mimilitary experts who regard them as the world's most accurate. Lacking any official confirmation, these reports said that the second and newer of the two sights held by the Army and Navy would not be released.

Release of the other, known as the Sperry bombsight, might take the form, it was said, of permitting the British to use existing sight units and to order new units from the manufacturer.

NICARAGUA CHIEF OUT

Molotoff Continues Berlin Talk As Balkans Watch Axis Moves

BERLIN, Nov. 13 (AP)—Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff held his second political conference with Adolf Hitler following a luncheon today in discussions which informed sources said were aimed at developing a long-range program of collaboration.

Flanked on his right by Molotoff and on his left by Soviet Mining Commissar Newossjan, the Fuehrer presided at a large oval dining table in his private apartment with 25 German and Russian guests present.

German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, with the Soviet ambassador, Alexander Schkhaitzeff, and Soviet Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs V. G. Dekanosoff, at his side, faced Hitler and Molotoff across the table.

General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German forces, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, Robert Ley, leader of the labor front, and Baron Friedrich Werner Von Der Schulenburg, ambassador to Moscow, were among the German dignitaries present.

MILITARY HONORS

Army and bodyguard sentries accorded the arriving guests military honors in the courtyard of the old chancellery. Hitler greeted them in the flower-bedecked reception hall and posed amid photographers' flash lights.

A Moscow dispatch said the counselor of the Japanese embassy to Moscow, Haruhiko Nishi, left Monday for Berlin, where the Hitler-Molotoff conferences are taking place. Nishi has the status of an envoy-at-large with special functions.—Editor's note.

Molotoff spent the morning in conferences with Goering and Deputy Nazi party leader Rudolf Hess.

Tonight, the Russian statesman and his staff will be hosts to the Nazi leaders at a banquet, returning the honors accorded to them last night by the Nazis at a State dinner.

Official circles were silent on the subjects discussed, but informed sources said it was believed the conferences were aimed at developing a long-range program of German-Russian co-operation.

HEAVILY GUARDED

Informants declared both German and Russian speakers at the dinner given Molotoff last night emphasized the friendly relations between the two nations.

The avenue leading from the Bellevue Palace, where Molotoff is staying, to the chancellery was guarded closely by police as the Russian statesman was escorted to his second day of conferences with Nazi officials.

An unusual sight to Berliners was the number of plainclothes men.

A curious crowd was gathered in front of the chancellery.

Molotoff's day began with a conference with Goering who, observers assumed, gave him a comprehensive picture of both the military and economic situation in Germany.

KRUPP AT DINNER

As the man who directed the "Battle of London" in its initial stages and later was reported to have flown over the British capital himself, Goering was in a position to give Molotoff an authoritative account of the aerial warfare.

As director of the German four year plan Goering also had at his fingertips information on Germany's economic position.

Churchill Cheered On Victory Speech

listed to starboard. It is not yet established as a certainty, but it appears probable that a second battleship of the Cavour class has been severely damaged and beached.

"In the inner harbor of Taranto, two Italian cruisers have listed to starboard, surrounded by oil fuel. Two fleet auxiliaries are lying with their sterns under water.

"Only two of our aircraft are missing despite the Italian claims."

Churchill was cheered so lustily that he had to pause between each sentence.

Churchill detailed almost word for word an earlier communique issued by the admiralty. Then he added:

"I felt it my duty to bring this glorious episode to the immediate notice of the House.

"As a result of this determined and highly successful attack which reflects the greatest honor upon the fleet air arm, only three Italian battleships now remain effective.

"This result, while it affects decisively the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean, also carries with it reactions on the entire naval situation in every quarter of the globe.

"I feel sure that the House will regard the results as highly satisfactory, reflecting the greatest credit upon Admiral Cunningham (not further identified) and above all upon the pilots of our fleet air arm, who like their brothers in the RAF continue to render the country services of the highest order."

British Say Italians Defeated in Sudan

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—British Indian and white troops captured lost and recaptured Gallabat, in the Anglo-Egyptian-Sudan near the Ethiopian border, in a 4 day action which involved five battalions of Italian and Askari (native) troops military circles reported today.

British and Italian sources repeatedly have contradicted each other's claims to possession of Gallabat in the past few days.—Editor's Note.

British artillery was reported by these military sources to be shelling now the Italian fortified camp at Metternma, near Gallabat, and they said shell dumps and gasoline depots there were in flames. Their force is co-operating with the British troops, it was learned.

The Italians "suffered heavily" in the fighting, the sources said.

7 ITALIAN WARSHIPS CRIPPLED

tacked the "main units" of the Italian force "snuggling behind their shore defenses in their main base at Taranto," under the heel of the Italian boot.

BATTLESHIP BATTERED

One battleship of the brand-new Littorio class, of 35,000 tons, was left "badly down by the bows," with her forecastle under water and a heavy list, as a result of bomb hits, the admiralty said.

Another battleship, of the 23,622-ton Conte di Cavour class, was beached, with her stern up and her turret under water, the communique said, while "it appears probable" a second battleship of that class was "severely damaged."

"In the inner harbor two cruisers are listed to starboard and are surrounded by oil fuel. Two fleet auxiliaries are lying with their sterns under water," the communique said.

"The total strength of the Italian fleet was six battleships, two of the Littorio class which have just been put in service, and four of the recently reconstructed Cavour class. As a result of this determined and highly successful attack, probably only three Italian battleships now remain effective."

ITALIANS ADMIT RAID

The attack, which was carried out the night of Nov. 11-12, was admitted to the Italians yesterday to have resulted in the serious damage of one warship.

The raid was one of a series which have been directed at Italy's southern naval bases and embarkation points for the rushing of reinforcements to the battlefront in Greece.

One of these raids was announced by the British on Monday. The admiralty revealed that planes from the airplane carrier Ark Royal had bombed the Sardinian city of Cagliari. Early in the war Berlin repeatedly claimed the Ark Royal had been sunk and last Summer Rome claimed Italian bombers had severely damaged the plane carrier.—Editor's Note.

The British denied Italian claims that six raiding planes were shot down in the Armistice night attack on Taranto, and said all but two of the bombers had returned.

The admiralty also said the British fleet was continuing to harass Italian communications in Africa, and had successfully bombarded Sid. Barrani, advanced Italian base in Egypt, on the night of Nov. 9-10 and exchanged fire with Italian shore batteries. The fleet received no damage or casualties, it was said.

The battleships of the 35,000 ton Littorio class are rated among the most powerful in the world.

TARANTO BLASTED

Only recently commissioned, they are the Littorio and Vittorio Veneto. Two others of this class, the Impero and Roma, are reported to be under construction.

The four ships of the Conte di Cavour class, all of 23,622 tons, are the Conte di Cavour, Giulio Cesare Caio Duilio and Andrea Doria.

The two cruisers reported damaged brought to three the Italian warships of this type reported put out of action by Britain since the start of the war.

The fast 5069-ton cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni was sunk in an early naval engagement in the Mediterranean.

British Fliers Bomb 3 Italian Naval Bases

ROME, Nov. 13 (AP)—British planes attacked three big Italian naval bases, at Brindisi, Bari and Taranto, the Italian high command reported today.

90 Survivors Land, Tell of Sea Raider

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Nov. 13 (AP)—Ninety survivors of four ships sunk by a night-shrouded Nazi raider were brought to a Newfoundland port today aboard a vessel which rescued them after 36 hours in tossing lifeboats.

Only one man required hospitalization; he had a broken leg.

The survivors said their ships were attacked by a large ship with "deadly accurate" guns. The raider's method, they said, was to disable steering gear and then finish off her prey at close range.

Neither the sunken ships nor the rescue vessel were identified.

One lifeboat from each lost vessel is still unaccounted for here though other ships may have found them.

MORE SURVIVORS LAND

At another Canadian port 65 seamen, most of them wounded heroes Canada's heroes today—scarred, exhausted survivors of the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay which saved at least 29 ships of a convoy of 38 before sinking, guns still roaring, in a mid-Atlantic battle with a powerful German raider.

They were brought into port late yesterday by a Swedish freighter, one of the convoy, whose captain, Sven Olander, went back after dark the night of Nov. 5 because "they did so well for us that I did not like to leave."

The identity of the freighter and the number of missing crew members of the 18-year-old, 14,164-ton Australian liner converted into a lightly-armed convoy guardship were kept a military secret. Also, the identity of the raider was unknown, but some of the survivors thought possibly she was a 10,000-ton pocket battleship, the Admiral Scheer or the Luetzow.

'HOPELESS' FIGHT

Survivors of the fight—of which the world had its first inkling last week when distress calls crackled out over the Atlantic—told how the Jervis Bay headed without hesitation into the "hopeless" fight, laid a smoke screen under which the convoy scattered, and plowed through a storm of shells straight for the raider until she was sunk by the latter's power.

Capt. E. S. F. Fegen remained in command "with one arm almost shot away," even though the fore part of the bridge was blown from under him. He went down with the blazing ship.

A British admiralty communique credited the saving of three-fourths of the convoy, which the Germans reported completely destroyed, largely to the "very gallant action of the Jervis Bay."

It said that despite "greatly inferior armament" the Jervis Bay "continued to engage the enemy after she had been severely hit and was burning furiously," and exploded after a two-hour fight.

24 SAFE IN PORT

Twenty-four ships in the convoy were reported to have reached ports, five others were reported safe and, the admiralty added, "it is possible that some of the ships still missing may be safe."

Among the vessels reported already in port were the Liner Rangiliki and the freighter Cornish City, whose distress calls were heard in the United States the night of the attack as the convoy was steaming from Canada to England.

"It was a sunny evening when we picked up the (German) ship on the port side at 4:50 o'clock," said one of the Jervis Bay officer survivors.

"She was a long way off. I don's know which of us saw the other first. She opened fire first, though.

"She closed to get into range, and we closed, too, leaving the convoy. We got between the enemy ship and the convoy and dropped smoke floats to screen the merchant ships from the raider."

Capt. Olander of the rescue freighter said the fight that followed was "glorious," and added in halting English:

"I'll never forget it."

TURNED BACK

He fled, with the rest of the merchantmen, but turned back after dark to search the calmed seas for survivors of the escort ship.

Captain Olander said he thought he saw five merchant ships in the convoy struck by shells fired from the raider.

He thought the raider's second salvo of shells, aimed at the Jervis Bay, overshot and damaged the Rangiliki.

In London tonight the admiralty announced that the 65 members of the crew of the Jervis Bay landed yesterday in Canada probably are all that survived the destruction of the ship.

Air Torpedoes Used in Attack On Italy's Fleet

LONDON, Nov. 13 (INS)—Naval planes equipped with aerial torpedoes carried out the devastating attack on the Italian fleet at Taranto, well-informed sources indicated today.

Even the heaviest bombs hitting the heavily armored decks and sides of modern battleships could hardly have caused such havoc, it was said.

Attack by aerial torpedo calls for greatest skill and courage, involving dives from a great height almost to the surface of the water near the targets to launch the weapons with any reasonable chance of a bull's-eye.

Italy Admits British Naval Forces Tough

ROME, Nov. 13 (INS)—Difficulties confronting Italy in naval warfare with Great Britain were stressed today by Virginio Gayda, Italian editor whose columns reflect the views of Premier Mussolini.

Gayda wrote that Italy at present is sustaining the main burden of an essentially naval phase of the war. He added:

"Italy's task is a difficult one in view of the enormous British forces in the Mediterranean."

Gayda's paper also said Germany and Italy had decided to pool their submarine forces for a concentrated attack on British shipping in the North Atlantic.

Nazis' Bremen Reported Sunk

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13 (AP) - Unconfirmed private reports, one received by the Danish-Norwegian Newspaper Bien, said today the Bremen, Germany's great merchant ship, had been sunk several weeks ago off the Danish coast.

A Danish family received a letter from realtives in Denmark saying the 49864-ton Bremen was sunk in the Kattegat, four miles north of Spodland, one of Denmark's largest island on which Copenhagen is situated.

leating New Hampshire plates standing in front of the liquor store.

He called other officers, then went to the store alone. As he approached, two men ran from the rear, Heylinger fired and one dropped.

Sergt. Marshall Witherell and Officer Edward N. Lawton, arriving then, captured one of the men sitting behind the wheel of the car without difficulty, then the three officers chased the last man over fences and through backyards until they captured him on a low roof.

Extra police were called out in Brighton after two armed bandits held up the Brookline Beverage Co. in Commonwealth ave., forcing the manager, James Gilbride, and an errand boy into a rear room while they looted the cash register of $50.

In downtown Boston John Ryan, manager of Flagg's liquor store in Dartmouth st., was also ordered into the back room of his store, with two clerks, by a lone gunman who took $69 from the till and escaped.

Nazis Report Bag Of 10 British Planes

BERLIN, Nov. 13 (INS)—Italian airmen shot down 10 British planes in aerial combats over the south of England yesterday, an official Berlin announcement claimed today.

A German plane bombed and destroyed the railway viaduct at Horsham, the statement said, while other German bombers attacked and destroyed a power station at Brighton on England's south coast.

Officials said that German planes dropped 170 tons of explosives on London alone during yesterday's attacks.

400 Painters Needed At Camp Edwards

FALMOUTH, Nov. 13—Employment for 400 union painters will be available Monday when contractors start work on a $300,000 painting job at Camp Edwards, it was announced today.

NURSE, MAID BRAVE FIRE TO AID INVALID

Firemen today sought the cause of a $6000 fire which swept an apartment building in Parkway rd., Brookline, during which a nurse and a maid, braving smoke and flame, remained by the side of a bed-ridden woman patient.

Mrs. Philip S. Johnson, confined to her bed in a second-floor apartment, was comforted by the nurse, Miss Laura Murray, 45, and her maid, Miss Catherine Healey, 22, as flames swirled around their apartment.

As firemen battled to keep the blaze from reaching the Johnson apartment, Fireman Edward Dohney was badly cut by flying glass and was rushed to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

One-Man Gang Suspect Held

Joseph Cahill's alleged one-man crime wave—in which police charge he broke into four establishments in two hours to net a total of only $7 and a fountain pen—ended in Roxbury Court today.

Special Officer John McNichol'as said Cahill, a 26-year-old truck driver of Summer st., Arlington, broke into two liquor stores on Lansdowne st. and an automobile salesroom on Boylston st., all in Back Bay, in the space of two hours yesterday morning.

Finally, McNicholas said, he broke a window in a grill on Boylston st., but the crash of glass was heard, police were called, and Cahill was captured after a short chase.

Before Judge Frankland W. L. Miles Cahill pleaded not guilty to three counts of breaking and entering in the night and larceny and one count of attempted breaking and entering, and was held for trial Nov. 18 in $2500 double sureties—a total of $5000 bail.

Britain's Cash Woos Turks

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The British government today announced a grant of £100,000 (about $400,000) to establish in London 'a Mosque and Islamic cultural center on a scale to meet the needs of many Moslems who live in or visit" Britain.

New Bedford Mayor in Race

Mayor Leo J. Carney of New Bedford and Mathew A. Glynn, former common council president, will face each other in a runoff election on Dec. 3 for the New Bedford mayoralty post.

So it was determined today after tabulations in the primary election showed that Carney with 8484 votes and Glynn with 6978 led a field of nine candidates for the nomination.

In Haverhill, Mayor Albert W. Glynn, seeking re-election, rode to an easy victory by getting 7335 votes in the primaries to 2367 votes for J. H. Merchant Cross, his campaign manager in the last election.

Throng Weeps At Girl's Rites

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Weeping women and children crowded St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church today and others stood outside in a cold, drizzling rain as funeral services were conducted for 10-year-old Genevieve Connoly, who was slain and cremated in a furnace last week.

A draped, but empty coffin stood in the center aisle as the low requiem mass was sung.

Five hundred of Genevieve's classmates from St. Luke's parochial school attended.

Thomas Conroy, 38, superintendent of the Bronx apartment where the girl was slain, is held in connection with her death.

Salvation Army Drive Speeded

Damon E. Hall, general chairman of the working groups in the Salvation Army's present drive to raise $200,000 for its work, announced today that $117,321 had so far been contributed.

Hall said the 2200 workers for the cause in towns and cities in Metropolitan Boston were working at top speed to raise the $53,000 needed by the deadline next Tuesday.

John E. Wilson, head of the subgroup of business and finance workers, said $35,434 of the $80,000 wanted in that division had already been given.

"You're in the army now!"

If you've been called into the service here's something to remember. Uncle Sam is going to provide you with food, shelter, clothing and medical attention and with a bank account, if you're as smart as a lot of Bay State boys were back in 1917. Thousands of them sent regular amounts from their monthly pay for credit to their savings accounts. When they returned home, tidy nest eggs had accumulated.

You can follow the same plan today. Before you leave for camp see your local Mutual Savings Bank and learn just what to do. Begin with your first pay — continue to send money regularly. It works!*

DOCTOR ON STAND IN LOVE BALM TRIAL

yer's neck and worked the hands down to O'Brien's shoulders, saying:

"Working down the whole length of the spine to find the lesions. When you find them, you adjust them."

O'Brien freed his neck and stepped back, resuming the questioning.

Q—Did you discuss her family affairs with reference to her nervous condition? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you give her advice as to her marital relations? A—Yes.

Q—Did you determine the cause of her condition? A—Yes. The woman was having a nervous breakdown. (Dr. Cole explained what he said was the cause). I told her to go home and have children.

QUIZZED ON VISIT

Q—Did you also tell her not to be intimate with her husband? A—I told her to avoid such intimacy if he was not co-operative.

The doctor said he made a social call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hall on Christmas night in 1934, when they were living in Boylston st. Mrs. Hall came down to the door, however, and explained that her husband was not in. After conversing briefly at the door, the doctor said, he left.

Q—When did you next see her after 1934? A—Jan. 15, 1936, at the office.

Q—What happened that day? A—I don't remember.

Q—Was it a social or professional visit? A—Professional visit.

Q—From what was she suffering when she was at the Hotel Breakers? A—She was under great mental strain—tired out and a nervous wreck, almost.

TREATED ON BED

Q—Did you treat her? A—I did.

Q—How? A—Osteopathic treatment, as I described before.

Dr. Cole said there was a Murphy bed in Mrs. Hall's room and that it was pulled out into the room for the treatment.

"She was treated on that," he explained.

Q—Did you see Mr. Hall that night? A—Yes. I let him into the room around 1 o'clock. He started pounding on the door, wanting to be let in.

At this point Atty. O'Brien asked that Dr. Cole be allowed to give way on the witness stand for the calling of two other witnesses.

The first of these witnesses was Nell Mercier, proprietress of the Brunswick Hotel. She testified that "Marjorie L. Hall" was employed there as telephone operator until the fall of 1936.

"I had the assistant manager order her to leave on account of the conduct of her husband," testified the witness.

HOTEL MANAGER QUIZZED

Under cross-examination, however, she said that she had no personal knowledge of the "conduct" of Hall.

Joseph J. DeSoto, assistant manager of teh hotel, then testified that he saw Hall, on one occasion, seize his wife as she was leaving the hostelry and try to wrench something out of her hand.

In her brief appearance on the stand, her third in three days, Mrs. Hall testified that she had been afraid of her husband. In answer to a question as to whether she was afraid of Dr. Cole, she replied:

"(Dr. Cole is a family friend and physician."

She never had received osteopcathic treatment from any doctor except Dr. Cole, she said.

Mrs. Hall's brother, Joseph Kelley of Pearl ave., Revere, testified in substantiation of her story that she had gone to Rye Beach, N. H., and a hotel there with Dr. Cole, but only in company with her brother and to get a razor he had left there the previous week.

PHONE TALK REVEALED

Back on the stand, Dr. Cole testified that on Aug. 16, 1936, in his presence, Hall accused Mrs. Hall of "going around with a Boston socialite."

About an hour later, said the physician, Hall came to his office and told me "that it was all right, that he had done it for an object."

Asked if Hall had explained what he meant by "object," Dr. Cole replied:

"Yes, he said it was to condemn Mrs. Hall in my sight. I don't kno wwhy. I wasn't interested in the fight."

Dr. Cole testified that Hall telephoned him the next day. When Dr. Cole was asked what Hall said, the witness turned to Judge Morton in appe.

"Will it be necessary for me to say it out loud?" he asked.

"Use the initials," suggested Atty. O'Brien.

"Oh, let's have it," said Judge Morton.

Dr. Cole drew a deep breath and began to repeat what Hall assertedly had said over the phone:

"You — — — — — — — of a —, I'm going to kill you."

The doctor added:

TALKED WITH POLICE

"Then he hung up."

Dr. Cole said that on another occasion, after midnight, the telephone rang and got him out of bed. A woman was on the phone, the witness said, but in the background he cou'd hear Hall's voice.

He could hear Hall, the doctor said, tell the woman to make an improper query of the doctor and ask him to come up and see her.

"I heard them snickering," testified Dr. Cole.

He said he informed police about both phone calls.

The doctor denied advising Mrs. Hall to leave her husband and he also denied any improper relations with her.

Although he had hired a room for her in Marlborough st., he said, and had been given the key, he had never visited her there.

Q—Isn't it necessary for a patient to remove the clothing during a treatment? A—It is.

Q—In Mrs. Hall's case, was it necessary for her vertebra to be exposed? A—No.

Q—Did she remove her clothing? A—Outside of her dress—body in the office appears to know who Kenneth Allen is.

A great fleet of trawlers . . . modern plants . . . nation-wide distribution . . . it all adds up to make the 40-Fathom picture increasingly important to the port of Boston.

In fact, another of Mayor Tobin's secretaries, William J. Wallace, issued a statement which said:

"Mayor Tobin declines to be drawn into the net of Mr. Curley's usual political tricks.

"Mayor Tobin assured me that he has never met, never seen nor even heard of Mr. Kenneth Allen. Mr. Curley is up to his old tricks of playing politics with the unemployed."

The voluble visitors were distressing enough to the usual aplomb of the mayor's office, but Berlandi encountered a new difficulty when three deaf mutes arrived and explained in writing that they had been sent over for jobs by a girl in the Curley office.

It became Berlandi's task then to write out all that he had explained vocally to the earlier visitors.

The Curley comment on the situation was:

"It is particularly gratifying, as the Massachusetts member of the Democratic National Committee and, consequently of the National Administration, that I have been instrumental in aiding more than 2000 deserving men to obtain employment upon the Camp Devens project.

"No political consideration of any character has been permitted to gain preference for any of the men who have literally overwhelmed me with requests for assistance in obtaining employment.

"The introduction of a new system at Camp Devens which appears to make political considerations paramount to all other factors has forced me to abandon the practice of recommending persons for employment. I know of no other avenue of approach to the Camp Devens employment office than through the office of the mayor of Boston."

FBI, Dies' Agents Probe Blasts

where powder was being produced.

The government was said to be short of the vital defense products. One ranking naval officer pointed out that saboteurs undoubtedly would center their destructive efforts on the sources of critical defense material, such as powder.

FBI GETS COPIES

The War and Navy procurement divisions were said to be furnishing the FBI copies of all national defense contracts as they are let. Close cooperation between the military and FBI was said to prevail, with the former advising the FBI where special emphasis for protection should be placed.

The problems of guarding defense plants, it was explained, rests first upon the companies holding the contracts, the Department of Justice and local authorities. Neither the War nor Navy Departments is desirous of furnishing troops to guard these plants, it was indicated.

FBI agents moved swiftly to the factories of the United Railway Signal Co., at Woodbridge, N. J., where at least seven persons were killed and to the Burton Explosives Co. plant at Edinburg near New Castle, Pa. Three employes wrapping dynamite were killed in the latter explosion.

AWAIT REPORTS

Reports, meanwhile, were awaited by the War Department and other government defense agencies from the Georgia National Guard on the cause of the fire in the drill rooms of the 179th Field Artillery in the Atlanta city auditorium.

Dies committee agents were directed to look into the suspected sabotage at the Todd shipyard in Seattle, Wash., where emery dust and ground glass were found in precision machinery.

New Wave of Mishaps Follows First Blasts

By the Associated Press

A series of blasts in explosives plants—one of which was engaged in defense manufacture—drew the attention of investigators today in an attempt to determine whether they were connected with possible sabotage efforts.

On the heels of the powder plant explosions came reports of other blasts and violent incidents, at least one occurring under mysterious circumstances.

A 10,000-gallon storage tank exploded at the Canton Refining Company, Canton, O. About 1000 gallons of fuel oil burned fiercely and threatened four other tanks for a time. The blast's force blew the top off the tank and knocked down several employes, but none was injured. It appeared to be accidental.

In Oklahoma, an explosion damaged units of the Phillips Forrester No. 1 oil well under circumstances which the plant foreman said were mysterious. No one was working at the time.

Two men were killed and two others injured when a shipbuilding crane at San Francisco's Western Pipe and Steel Company capsized.

Willkie Hits Honest Note

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

I'm going to make a confession about yesterday's article. Owing to the office deadline I wrote it before I heard Willkie broadcast. Yet his entire speech boiled down to a paragraph near the end of the article:

"It is the business of the minority to apply the brakes to perpetual political motion and to see that the watch dog of the treasury does not become a household pet."

Mr. Willkie aimed his speech at inflation and dictatorship. Read the above paragraph and you will see it all in there.

I would elect Willkie in 1944 for his honesty alone in this campaign. In nine out of ten things he agreed with his opponent when another kind of politician would have howled like an ape kissing a porcupine.

That shows the man is as honest as a forty-inch yardstick.

My advice to Wendell is to stay out of that cabinet or he will lose his identity like the lady in the beauty parlor where they mixed cement with the mud packs.

A couple of other prominent Republicans were swallowed up in that man trap. And we haven't seen hide nor hair of either one since.

Wendell is titular head of 22,000,000 Republicans who still have enough pepper left to march past some important buildings.

Well, that's the end of the campaign and both candidates signed off in a blaze of glory and hoss feathers. Let's roll up our sleves and look over the scratches at Pimlico Park. We've work to do.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Saved in Fire On 2d Birthday

Little Shephard Brodie's birthday party was a red hot event, Dorchester firemen said today.

While Mrs. Rose Brodie of Angell st., Dorchester, was serving a birthday supper to celebrate Shephard's second birthday, a cry of "fire!" was shouted through the window by a neighbor. The mother snatched up little Shephard and led her other boy, Jason, five, to the street and safety.

The blaze, it developed, had started in the rear of the first floor of the apartment building and had spread to the second floor of a house on Blue Hill ave.

Six Destroyers For Britain Here

In gray war paint, six American destroyers steamed slowly up Boston harbor today for final reconditioning at the navy yard in Charlestown before delivery to Britain at a Canadian port.

The six were led by the supply ship Denebola and the spic and span brand-new American destroyer leader Roe.

The vessels were the Bailey, Meade, Swasey, and Shubrickall built at Squantum in 1918—the Fairfax and Claxton. All were four stackers.

Observers along the waterfront said the Fairfax had five deep dents in her port side and the others, while not as bad as that, were far from shipshape.

As they steamed up the harbor, three Boston trawlers converted by the Navy into minesweepers, went slowly out to sea, dipping colors as they passed.

Officers at the navy yard indicated the six ships were the last of the famed batch of 50 traded to Great Britain, that would appear in Boston.

It was estimated these six brought to about 30 the total of ships refitted here for delivery to England.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record American GAME of CHECK is open to all persons living in the New England States. However, no employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, nor any newspaper dealer, and carriers who deliver the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, nor any person acting as a proxy for another, nor any person who has won $500 or more in any contest, may win a prize.

2—Beginning Monday, October 14, 1940, a Check Sheet will be published each weekday in the Boston American and Boston Record. Each Check Sheet will contain three cartoon questions. Four and only four suggested answers will be printed under each cartoon question used in the daily Check Sheet. One and only one of these suggested answers is the correct answer to the question appearing above. The six Check Sheets published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen series. Answers to each week's series of cartoon questions should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, P. O. Box 2337, c o the Boston Record-American Game of Check. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their answers, achieve the 100 highest scores. A Check Sheet will not be judged as a unit—each and every question will be judged separately. Thus a contestant will get credit for each question correctly answered. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking questions, and if necessary, a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking questions. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solutions of such tie-breaking questions.

At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking questions without assistance in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of Check Sheets with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of Check Sheets and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest the Boston Record-American will present a special quiz booklet created by Harold Hart, author of the famous quiz volume "Invitation to Fun."

6—Any person by entering this contest understands it is a contest of individual effort and agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record-American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others, the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time before or after January 27th, the closing date, for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the establishment of time limitations, the judging of answers, the scoring of answers and interpretation of such instructions governing individual questions as may be announced by the officials of the contest. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record-American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. Not more than one prize will be awarded to members of any one immediate family. The Boston Record-American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American to the contestant.

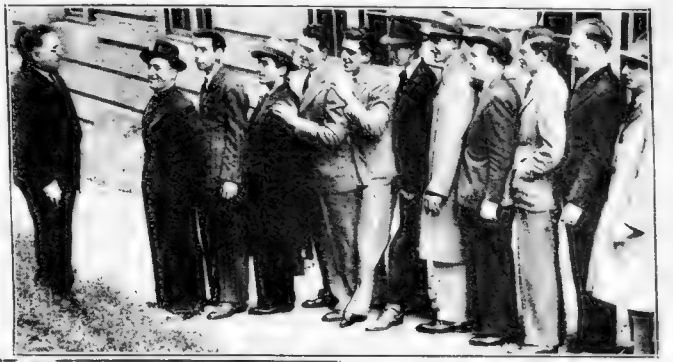
THE DRAFT COMES TO BOSTON

Unofficial Examinations' Given as Board Waits for Equipment



Army Ahead—Attorney Cosimo D. Nicastro, secretary of East Boston Draft Board No. 12, talks to draftees, all volunteers for immediate service, on their arrival for medical examinations. Rocco Caristo, 27, of Princeton st., and Peter Amico, 27, of Harvard st., first two men in line, both passed. Equipment hadn't arrived, so the tests were put off till Monday. Meanwhile, "unofficial" tests were held.

BRITISH ORCHIDS have come to the peaceful American shores "for the duration."

Protected by moss and securely packed in 15 wooden cases, the extremely valuable floral collection of the Duke of Westminster is now in Miami, Fla.

These delicate plants with strikingly beautiful flowers, are treasured not only for their loveliness but also for the romance and adventure they represent.

To find rare species of orchids, Britons have gone to the most remote regions of the world, defied death on mountains, lost their lives in jungles.

Carefully nurtured in English greenhouses, many strains have required generations to reach full maturity.

If we can save them now, we shall make an important contribution to the period of peace and enterprise everyone hopes will follow the current conflict.

Incidentally, the orchid is not a stranger in the United States. The lady's-slipper, familiar to every New Englander, is a member of that floral family.

Properly cared for and developed, this humble flower could be transformed into a creation of wondrous beauty.

TWO THANKSGIVINGS will be observed this year, thus continuing the departure from tradition that caused a nation-wide controversy in 1939, when President Roosevelt proclaimed November 21 as the date.

The Governors of 31 States will follow the President's example, while the executives of the others will adhere to the customary "last Thursday in November."

All New England will celebrate on the latter date, as will States like Florida, Iowa, Nevada and South Dakota, in which many former "Yankees" reside.

This is worthy of attention because, after all, Thanksgiving Day is really a New England day, in view of the fact that the Pilgrims originated it.

However, the other side has a strong defense for the earlier date.

The first Thanksgivings were governed by whim and fancy. Often the holiday came in September, though sometimes it was postponed until February.

Finally, in 1863, President Lincoln appointed Thursday, August 6, "as a day for national thanksgiving, praise and prayer."

The next year the festival was shifted to the last Thursday in November, and there it remained until Mr. Roosevelt surprised the country with his precedent-breaking proclamation in 1939.

A "YELLOW DAY" such as the earth has not experienced in a half-century, with twilight at noon and strange odors permeating the atmosphere, is predicted for the latter part of January.

The prophecy is based on the possibility of the newly-discovered Cunningham Comet's striking the globe on which we live.

There is fortunately no cause for alarm.

Our planet has passed through the tails of various comets, and, in every case, the effects have been inappreciable.

For example, on May 18, 1910, we swept blithely through the gaseous train of Halley's Comet with neither fear nor damage.

The writer remembers watching that brilliant spectacle in the northeast sky 30 years ago.

With him was his grandmother, who was then 85 years of age.

As they looked at the celestial visitor and, like millions of other persons, wondered about it, Grandma said:

"I am uniquely privileged. I have seen Halley's Comet twice—first, when I was a girl of ten and now, again, when I am an aged woman. I hope that you, too, will enjoy as long a life."

The writer is also hoping.

A BOUNTIFUL CHRISTMAS is assured thousands of American families by the announcement of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

A few weeks hence, banks are going to distribute the impressive sum of $69,559,014 to 1,676,417 depositors who have maintained Christmas Club accounts.

A large amount—$16,146,919 of the $69,559,014 will be paid to 331,495 men, women and children in Massachusetts.

All this spells PROSPERITY.

Hundreds who want new clothing can have it.

Hundreds who are ashamed of shabby homes need apologize no longer.

Other hundreds can cease envying their neighbors' bigger, better cars. They can buy and enjoy the new models themselves.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 13 — Today I rode over the Highway of Tomorrow. From Harrisburg, Pa., to Pittsburgh, Pa. This is really something. One hundred and sixty-five miles without a stop and go sign. You can travel as fast as you like. There is a toll charge of a dollar and a half and it is worth it. Scenery is beautiful and there are no billboards. If they had a highway like this from Coast to Coast, you could drive from New York to Los Angeles in four days with overnight stops. There are no grades, no sharp turns and no intersections to worry about. Though you can go 80 or 90 an hour if you want to it is best to keep at around 60 on this trip. If traveling East or West by auto, don't miss the Pennsylvania turnpike. It is an unforgettable experience.

PITTSBURGH is often harassed by floods. The town's theme song is "River Stay Away from My Door." The business offices in the Golden Triangle section are not equipped with surf-boards and collapsible canoes, but they should be . . . The streetcar fare is ten cents. And this on cars operated by one man. I really should stay in Pittsburgh for a time and start a campaign for two-man street cars. It is things such as one-man street cars that make the unemployment situation what it is. Eleanore Duse died in Pittsburgh. Lillian Russell was happily married in Pittsburgh for many years. And for more than 20 years, Pittsburgh had on its team Hans Wagner, the greatest baseball player of all time. Now don't try to tell me Ty Cobb was the greatest baseball player. Ty had a weak arm. Hans had no weaknesses.

O. HENRY, Willa Cather and Sophie Kerr worked on Pittsburgh newspapers. Oscar Levant, the comedy relief of "Information Please"; David Selznick, producer of "Gone With the Wind"; Playwrights George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, Ethelbert Nevin, who wrote the music for "The Rosary," and Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer of "At Dawning," are from Pittsburgh or vicinity. Katherine Brush, author of "Young Man of Manhattan," "The Red Haired Woman," and the most detailed autobiography since the confessions of Rousseau, also worked in Pittsburgh. But the greatest of all creative artists from this section was Stephen Foster. He was born here and married a Pittsburgh girl. Foster who wrote so many songs that made people homesick for the South spent very little time in Dixie. He lived in Pittsburgh then moved to New York where he died friendless and alone in Bellevue Hospital.

-:- MY DAY

DETROIT, Mich., Tuesday—In the past few days both England and the United States have suffered the loss of two well-known statesmen Senator Key Pittman has been in the Senate for many years. His service is a matter of record. He was liked by the men with whom he worked. He kept his hold over his constituency and carried more weight in public affairs than the population of his State would indicate.

As younger men come along to take their place on the political stage, they will often hear Senator Pittman's name. He will not be forgotten in the traditions of this honorable and important branch of our government.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, in England, served his country through desperate times. Many people have felt that his policy toward Germany was unwise and dangerous. Perhaps it would be fair to say that his training and his inclination fitted him for different times and different service.

He did his best according to his background. He wanted peace and worked for it. That he failed was due to the times in which he lived and the men with whom he had to cope. He must have suffered greatly and history will record that he, at least, dealt honorably with the people whom he approached.

WE ARRIVED in Chicago yesterday afternoon, oblivious of the fact that one of the worst of winter's storms had been raging through the Middle West for several hours. But we no sooner emered on the street, than we were conscious of the high wind and the swirling snow.

One of the biggest street signs in Chicago was blown down, windows were broken, people were battered about. Toward late afternoon, the storm spent itself and when we went out for the evening, the wind had practically disappeared.

I lectured at a forum, where I spoke some four years ago. Then a night train brought us to Detroit this evening. Here again, there are signs of the storm everywhere. The little square outside of the Statler Hotel is filled with broken glass. One of the highest radio towers was blown down.

WHEN NATURE goes on the rampage, we mortals discover how puny human beings and their works really are.

In Rumania, the earthquake seems to have accomplished in a few short hours what all the aviators of Great Britain have tried unsuccessfully to do for weeks—fires are raging, oil wells are destroyed and Herr Hitler can direct his rage at no human hand. In this case it looks as though Nature was against him.

The sun is out and the day looks inviting, and shortly I shall visit some WPA projects.

BEA LILLIE INSPECTS THEATER RUINS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Beatrice Lillie's home in St. John's Wood no longer stands. It was bombed . . . Last month Bea was called away from London to go to Bristol and entertain the troops there. When she returned 10 days later her chauffeur drove her through the heart of London. They passed His Majesty's Theater and Bea noticed that the theater had been bombed. Bea left the car to inspect the ruins—the front blown away, the orchestra seats shattered and strewn across the street, special green handbills stuck into the programs which had announced the final performance . . . She stopped and picked up one of these green slips. It read: "Due to The Emergency, Miss Beatrice Lillie Will Not Appear Tonight."

GRETA GARBO

CRITICS' CIRCLE: In "Quiet Please," the new play produced by Jesse Lasky, one of the characters portrays a writer who refuses to permit the director to eliminate any lines from his script. When Lasky wanted to eliminate some of the lines from the play, the authors refused to permit . . . JESSE JONES: Your predecessor as Secretary of Commerce, Harry Hopkins, won the election pool at Hyde Park. Hopkins estimated that the Republicans would get 82 electoral votes . . . JOHN D. M. HAMILTON: G. O. P. officials are insisting that when the new Republican setup is arranged a top post will go to Dave Ingalls of Ohio who managed Senator Taft's campaign.

GRETA GARBO: When the Dramatists' Guild members discussed the new agreement permitting movie companies to back plays, some objectors stated that this would allow film officials to put screen stars who have no picture assignments into a Broadway play—and then recall those stars whenever they're needed in Hollywood . . . "This would hurt the play and playwright," one writer argued. "It would make the theater subservient to Hollywood. For instance, it would allow MGM to put Garbo into a play for three months. Then, when they finally have a movie story ready, they'd be free to take her out of the play" . . . Edward Childs Carpenter quieted the objector by stating: "Three months with Garbo would do ANY author a lot of good."

H. L. MENCKEN: Paul Ward, your colleague at the Baltimore Sun, won the election pool at the National Press Club in Washington. When Ward was asked how he arrived at the winning electoral figure for Roosevelt, he explained: "I started with all my Roosevelt states. The rest was a cinch—because I merely added those states marked 'Doubtful' and 'leaning to Willkie' in the poll by Gould Lincoln of the Washington Star" . . . NELSON ROCKEFELER: Archie Black, chairman of "A. & C. Black, Ltd.," the London book-publishing firm, wrote a letter to Simon & Schuster about the new glass penthouse you built for them at Rockefeller Center. Black, who is a captain now, asked for the floor plans. "At the end of this present nuisance," he wrote, "I have it in my mind to rebuild my own offices in Soho Square, whether the demolition is done for me or not."

JIM FARLEY: Is Marshall Field your new backer in the deal for the purchase of the Yankee ball team? . . . CLARENCE A. DYKSTRA: Sinclair Lewis, who left your Univ. of Wisconsin last week to return to N. Y., doesn't intend to relinquish his job at the university. He still has a lease on a house in Madison, Wis. He returned because of some option difficulties with his new play.

JOHN GARFIELD: Henry Bernstein, the playwright whose "Melo" you want Warners to buy as your next picture, was discharged from Medical Center last week, after an operation on his right hand. Then he went to Fefe's Monte Carlo, where, during a discussion, he banged the table for emphasis and injured the hand again . . . HAROLD ICKES: Although there have been reports that Cordell Hull may tender his resignation as you've done, he is determined upon remaining . . . FRANK HAGUE: Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago has told friends that he may follow your suit—retire as political chieftain, but still retain the Mayoralty job.

MAINLY ABOUT MUSIC: If Dante needs a novelty trick for his show, he might consider the marvelloius Socarras, maestro at the Beachcomber . . . What the brown-skinned Cuban does with that flute is no less than magic . . . Ella Fitzgerald's band at the Brunswick's Bermuda Terrace, Everett Hoagland and his boys at the Statler, and Stuart Fraser at the Copley Plaza's Sheraton Room add to the musical variety of the Boston scene.

MISS FITZGERALD and Mr. Hoagland are surrounded by visiting musicians, but the Fraser lads are members of the local local . . . Maestro Fraser, who owns a very pleasing voice, is a Southerner . . . In the far downtown reaches, at Joe Nardone's Hurricane, a new combination of conga-rhumba-swing specialists takes the downbeat from a gentleman named Tax Sabby.

THE SABBYS ARE at their best with the jungle rhythms . . . Singing with them is a 21-year-old girl named Jill Adrian . . . She does "Six Lessons from Madame La Zonga"—in Spanish . . . This is something to hear . . . Further proof that there is money in "zombies"—and there is no limit of two drinks to a person at the Boston conga-rhumba palaces any longer—may be had from The Hurricane's presentation of a troupe of dancers together with the band and Miss Adrian.

"THE RAMON TALAVERA Dancers" is the official billing of the sextette from Nardone's . . . before finishing with things Latin-American, we should note that in aid of continental amity, South America will be included in plans to proclaim the week of November 21 to 28 as "Sing America Week" . . . In South America it will be observed as "Sing the Americas Week" . . . North America, apparently will sing only to herself . . . This would appear to be a slight bonel.

WE SHOULD NOT NEGLECT the news that the joint venture of two Bostonians, Tom Maren and Ru-Foo, in giving Providence a cabaret known as The Beachcomber, is a real success . . . The spot's Friday "Celebrity Nights" is drawing a weekly complement of "names," and capacity rules . . . Johnny Cole, ex-of the Sheraton Roof, has transferred his good orchestra to the Providence Narragansett Hotel . . . Kay Doyle, who made her debut at the Mayfair, is the vocalist with the band.

THE 1940 SONG CANDIDATE (nominated by one of the recording companies) to be the new army's "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning!" is a tune called "Oh! They're Making Me All Over in the Army" . . . and neither "Beer Barrel Polka," nor "There'll Always Be An England," England's most-sung and most-played war song . . . "A Nightingale Sings in Berkeley Square" is the favorite number.

BUT IRVING BERLIN'S "Tomorrow Is A Lovely Day," from "Louisiana Purchase" is very popular in London, and this, with America's predilection for the Berlin song, "God Bless America" gives Irving first place as the man who writes the songs for a pair of nations . . . And wasn't it, by the way, the same Mr.

RAMON TALEVERA DANCERS
There Are Six of Them at "The Hurricane"

Berlin who wrote "Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning!" Answer; it was).

MORE ABOUT MUSIC: At the risk of we-know-not-what, the column reports—merely reports, please remember—that there's a song being plugged which bears the title: "The Irish Were Egyptians Long Ago" . . . As Billy Murray, a real Irishman, sings the song with Harry's Tavern Band, there must be something in the text which justifies the strange logic of the title . . . Lauritz Melchior, the famous yodeler of high music, has one superstition that is a "must" . . . Mrs. Melchior must kick him as he goes out the door before each singing performance.

GARY MAY LOSE COVETED ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Gary Cooper

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (INS) Comes the following pertinent statement from Paramount: "Contrary to rumors that Gary Cooper will star in Ernest Hemingway's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' or any other picture, Paramount states officially that Mr. Cooper is under exclusive contract to Samuel Goldwyn and that there is no basis for these reports. At such time as the services of Gary Cooper are desired by Paramount, they will negotiate with Mr. Goldwyn

A 6-year-old child should be able to read between the lines that a tug-o'-war has been going on between Para and Mr. G. over Gary. But if Gary doesn't get to make the Hemingway story he'll be pretty much in the position of the innocent bystander who was shot! I happen to know that he and Hemingway had long huddles about "For Whom the Bell Tolls" during a recent vacation, for both at Sun Valley—and Gary is crazy to do it. Hemingway, who collected a cool $100,000 from Paramount for the screen rights, plus two cents per copy on book sales, thinks Gary would be perfect too.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Paul Draper is entertaining Heidi Vossler of the "Louisiana Purchase" company. She planed in to see him—and that romance will bear watching; things aren't as black as they first seemed between Margaret and Hal Roach and nothing could make their friends happier than news that they have reconciled; Carole Landis got her divorce yesterday in Los Angeles and her ex Willis Hunt, Jr., didn't contest; when Dottie Lamour sings at the newsboys' benefit Thanksgiving Greg Bautzer will be the only outsider. Not because Greg is Lamour's amour—but because he used to sell Los Angeles Examiners himself!

MIRIAM HOPKINS, worried because she felt the Hollywood press didn't like her, is delighted over the reviews on "Lady With Red Hair"; Kate Smith with Ted Collins and her entire troupe get to Hollywood Saturday to huddle with Darryl Zanuck about "Great American Broadcast"; it's wedding bells soon for Jimmy Heusen, Bing Crosby's song writer, and Nan Wyn, New York night club singer; my good friend, Prudence Penny, starts her fourth cooking short for Pete Smith today—it deals with good recipes for male cooks.

HAD LUNCHEON with Ann Masters and T. Netcher. T. is working hard and expects to stay in Chicago until March; Mary Healy and Peter Lind Hayes dropped in to see us just in time for dinner, which we ate at the theater. Mr. Gabby sent in the roast beef—and was it good! It's lucky I can't get around to all the Chicago restaurants or I'd gain back all the pounds I've lost on this tour.

ANGNA ENTERS, the very clever pantomimist, who has become world famous, is being sought by Sol Lesser to play the lead in her own original, "The Green Hour." Miss Enters is now on tour and I understand is making every effort to get to Hollywood, for Sol believes he will be able to do for her what he did for Martha Scott. I smile when he says that, for I had to work hard to sell him on the idea that Martha should play her own role in "Our Town" and he now admits he wouldn't have thought of her if I hadn't suggested it. "The Green Hour" deals with occupied Paris and gets its title from the old absinthe cocktail hour which was known as "the green hour."

JOHN PAYNE not only gets a singing role in his next, "Song of the Islands," but he'll go into a Jon Hall act and park his wardrobe for some native emoting. Breaking into song and a satong at the same time is something new for Payne, though they tell be the paying customers will be amazed at his singing with Alice Faye in "Tin Pan Alley."

By the way, 20th sneak previewed the Irving Berlin musical at Long Beach Friday night and the comment cards were sensational. Most of the fans agreed it was the best musical since "Alexander's Ragtime Band." There's a chance that Darryl Zanuck may put Linda Darnell into "Song of the Islands" with Payne—but that isn't definite.

NORMA SHEARER, ROBERT TAYLOR IN NEW LOEW'S FILM

'Escape' Drama Of Nazi Victims

A group of 11 outstanding character actors, headed by Stars Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, combine to bring to the screen one of the most thrilling best-sellers of the past year, Ethel Vance's "Escape."

The picture opens tomorrow on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, preceded by more comment, speculation and suggestions than any picture since "Gone With the Wind."

Miss Shearer is seen as the Countess von Treck, who finds herself involved in the desperate attempts of American Artist Mark Pressing to rescue his mother, ex-Actress Emmy Ritter, from death in a concentration camp.

Taylor enacts young Pressing, with Nazimova, star of silent films, returning to the screen for the first time in 15 years as Emmy. European Star Conrad Veidt appears as the General, lover of the Countess, and ultimate menace of Emmy's safety.

With this quartet of principals appear, in almost equally important roles, Felix Bressart as Fritz, old family retainer; Albert Bassermann as Heming, the aged lawyer; Dutch Leading Man Philip Dorn as the camp physician, Dr. Ditten, who makes Emmy's escape possible, Bonita Granville as the schoolgirl, Ursula; Edgar Barrier, as the sadistic Police Commissioner; Elsa Bassermann as the lawyer's wife, and Blanche Yurka, as the brutal prison matron.

Each of these becomes involved in Emmy's flight. Around the question of whether they will aid or turn against her, the whole thrilling story revolves. Mervyn LeRoy directed.

On the same bill, Hullabaloo," with Frank Morgan playing himself and some other screen celebrities in a behind the scenes in radio story, has a cast including Virginia Grey, Billie Burke, Nydia Westman, Donald Meek and Reginald Owen.

ROBERT TAYLOR and Norma Shearer make their first appearance together on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, starting tomorrow, in "Escape," filmization of the exciting novel by Ethel Vance.

Signed for Beethoven Role

William Sekely announces the signing of Albert Basserman for an important role in "New Wine," the film which he is producing in conjunction with Alexander Korda, and scheduled to face the cameras Dec. 16.

Basserman, who will be remembered for his outstanding performances in "Foreign Correspondent" and "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," will portray the role of the famous composer, Ludwig Van Beethoven. Others in the cast now include Ilona Massey, Eugene Meredith, who will be seen as Franz Schubert, United Artists and Binnie Barnes. The director is Reinhold Schunzel.

"New Wine," an original story and screenplay by Ladislaus Buchetete, is based on an episode in the life of Franz Schubert, and will feature a number of that great composer's best known melodies. The production will be released by

New Stage Show At RKO Boston

Another gala combination stage and screen show, featuring Buster Shaver with Olive and George, Marjorie Gainsworth and Johnny Burke on the stage and "Stranger On the Third Floor," with Peter Lorre, and Phantom of Chinatown," with Keye Luke on the screen opens tomorrow at the RKO Boston for a four-day run.

Back from a triumphant tour of the European music halls, Buster Shaver presents Olive and George, the Lilliputian stars, in a series of new songs and dances culminating in a novel dance performed by Buster Shaver and tiny Olive.

Marjorie Gainsworth, who was introduced in the Chicago Opera House a few seasons ago by Mary Garden as a singer "who possesses the most phenomenal voice I have ever heard," has a repertoire of over 100 songs and will sing a selection of these numbers ranging from the classical to the present popular songs.

Johnny Burke, the weary, sad-looking soldier boy, offers the hilarious monologue describing his adventures as a recruit in the army. Much of his discourse has to do with the recent draft and current army happenings.

Mills, Kirk and Ray in their comedy skit entitled "Yizzle See" and Ernie and Naida Pere, dance stylists, complete this show.

"Stranger On The Third Floor" presents the plight of a young newspaper man whose testimony has sent an innocent man to the death cell, following which he finds himself the victim of a similar situation. Retribution and the problems of circumstantial evidence are woven into this unusual and gripping film.

The co-feature, "Phantom of Chinatown," is the story of a hunt for an unknown killer who has murdered a well-known explorer.

MARJORIE GAINSWORTH, who has a repertoire of 100 songs, will sing a selection of these numbers ranging from the classical to the currently popular, on RKO Boston stage, starting tomorrow.

THE STORY OF A MOST EXCITING STORY

"ESCAPE"—a story that appeared serially in the pages of The Saturday Evening Post—a book immediately selected for distribution by "The Book of the Month Club"—a book that became the top ranking novel of last year with more than a quarter million full priced copies sold—a book so eagerly sought after that the new popular edition is expected to sell into the millions! "Escape"—the most exciting novel of our time!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has long been famous for the great stories it has brought to the screen—"David Copperfield" and "The Good Earth", "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Northwest Passage", "The Citadel", "Goodbye Mr. Chips" and many others. It is fitting that Metro should produce "Escape"—fitting because with M-G-M making the picture the audiences of the world are assured that the story will be rendered authentically and superbly!

Every studio resource has been poured into the making of "Escape". Norma Shearer is the Countess to the life. Robert Taylor creates his most memorable film characterization as Mark Preysing. Conrad Veidt is General Kurt. And, for the demanding role of Emmy Ritter, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer prevailed upon the famous Nazimova to return to the screen.

"Escape" now takes its place in the array of great stories which have fulfilled their destiny on the motion picture screen!

Imogene Coca Here Nov. 25

If you had Imogene Coca's great serious eyes and her piquant dead-pan face, you would know in a flash how the sublime can be turned into the ridiculous just with the flutter of a tremulous eye-lash or the flick of an angular wrist.

On the stage there is an air of solemn seriousness about her that says come anything or high water she's doing what she's doing and she's going to finish it.

Audiences have learned to expect anything while she is in front of the footlights—or merely headed in that direction, and it is just this zaniness that is expected to enliven "All in Fun," the new Leonard Sillman musical revue, which brings her, featured with Bill Robinson and Phil Baker, to the Shubert Theater on Monday evening, Nov. 25, for a two-week engagement prior to Broadway.

Miss Coca originally took to comedy with great seriousness. She was a dancer and a singer, preparing to open in one of Mr. Sillman's earliere revues. During rehearsal, she was clowning—just for the fun of it—and lo! she found herself clowning on the stage as a new twist to her career.

That is just about the way she since has developed her comic diversions from gauche romping to straight-faced burlesques on Zorina and Carmen Miranda.

You go to the opera or the ballet. The stage is overflowing with fluff and frou-frou. A ballerina comes up in a fountain. Another moves with ethereal ease towards an off-stage pool and there is grace and beauty as the veils float gently from her. That is the way, at least, that the balletomanes see it. In a more mundane department of the show world, the whole thing is called a strip-tease.

No situation under the sun is so serious that a twist can not turn it into laughable material for the stage. Wherever she goes, Miss Coca, with her great eyes and wry mien, is turning up the underpants on the dignified idols of the day. And when she gets going with one of these ideas, culled for here, there and everywhere, nothing, particularly not the howls of delighted audiences, can stop her.

101st Air Squadron To Muster Nov. 25

Members of the 101st Observation Squadron, Massachusetts National Guard, today started arranging their personal affairs preparatory to reporting for active army service on Nov. 25.

Second oldest army flying unit in the country, the Bay State squadron and Rhode Island 152d Observation Squadron, one of the newest, were called to the colors at the same time through an announcement by Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff, First Corps Area commander.

First orders from the War Department set Friday, Nov. 15, as the induction date for men and officers of the two units, but a second message from Washington postponed the date to Nov. 25.

BASE AT EAST BOSTON

It was expected that the Massachusetts Squadron will be based at East Boston Airport until January, then transferred to Camp Edwards, Cape Cod, when the entire 26th Division will be mustered. The Rhode Island unit will train at Hillsgrove Airport, Providence, and later move to Fort Devens.

The 101st Observation Squadron is the second oldest in the country and is commanded by Maj. Albert L. Edson, superintendent of the East Boston airport. It was organized in 1919 by returning World War fliers, who succeeded finally in cutting red tape to be officially recognized in November, 1921, a few weeks after the first unit in Baltimore had won similar recognition by the U. S. Army.

FLEW FOOD IN FLOODS

Given cast-off "Jennies" in which to train, the fliers eventually received official recognition. The squadron has performed many public services. It has flown food to isolated towns during floods of '36 and '38; located yachting parties lost at sea before the Coast Guard fleet's service was organized and dropped food to the residents of Nantucket when they were marooned by ice fields a few years ago.

At the present time the unit is equipped with four O-47 observation planes capable of tremendous speed and with great range, as well as several O-46 planes, slightly slower in speed.

The 101st squadron includes a photo section and medical detachment with a total of 31 officers and 160 enlisted men. The 152d has a dozen planes, only two of them being the last new O-47 type, the remainder being training planes. That unit was officially recognized only 1st October.

WORLD WAR FLIERS

Maj. Edson, commanding officer of the 101st, and four of his ranking officers are World War fliers who helped form the squadron on their return from war service.

Second in command to Maj. Edson is Capt. Clyde C. Jakway, in civil life head of the North Shore Motors Co. Another is Capt. George E. Sprague of Saugus, an editor of the Daily Record.

4 Men, Woman Face Court on Still Raid

AUGUSTA Me., Nov. 13—In one of the largest alcohol seizures since repeal, four men and a woman, arrested by agents of the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit and State Police, faced arraignment today on charges of conspiracy in the possession of an illicit still.

State Police reported they seized a truck in Gardiner with 285 gallons of alcohol which they charged was bound for Canada, while federal agents raided a farm house near Augusta and found a still capable of producing 300 gallons of alcohol a day.

Mercury Drop Due in Hub

Spare the full effects of the storm which whipped in from the midwest Boston and most of New England today were in for colder weather.

According to the weather bureau the rain will stop in Boston some time today and give way to cloudy skies and lower temperatures.

Although the city was lashed by a heavy rain and a strong wind which reached gale proportions in Burlington and St Albans, Vt., New England generally escaped the brunt of the disturbance as it shifted to the northward after moving over from the Great Lakes region.

New Wiman Play Due Here Dec. 9

"Old Acquaintance," the Dwight Deere Wiman production which went into rehearsal in New York yesterday with the arrival of playwright John van Druten from Hollywood, is scheduled for two weeks at the Plymouth Theater, starting Dec. 9.

This is van Druten's 18th play and the first to have a locale other than his native England. This time, instead of the usual British background, he has chosen present-day New York for his mise en scene. Two celebrated women novelists are his protagonists, and the plot revolves around the complications which ensue when the daughter of one writer falls in love with the second novelist's current inspiration.

Antiol Lee, who has directed the last 15 of van Druten's works, will perform a similar service for this production. In addition to the co-starring Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood, the cast includes Barry Jones, Kent Smith, Adele Longmire and Nancy Wiman.

'East of the River' At Scollay, Modern

John Garfield and Brenda Marshall, co-stars of "East of the River," will be the attraction on the Scollay and Modern screens, starting Friday. Their film vehicle tells the strange story that is hidden in the shadow of the towering skyscrapers. On the same bill will be "Then Over Burma," starring Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, Preston Foster and Doris Nolan.

Election Costs Him 35¼ Cents

AKRON, O., Nov. 13 (AP)—State Rep. Gus Kasch reported to the board of elections he spent 35¼ cents to be re-elected.

His report of expenditures listed 6¼ cents for a bus check used to attend a meeting at German-American Hall.

The only other item was 29 cents for a pound of candy.

'The Secret Seven' On Bowdoin Screen

Melodramas will entertain the Bowdoin fans for the next three days. "The Secret Seven," gangster play, will be seen with Barton MacLane, Bruce Bennett and Florence Rice in the leading roles. Also billed is "The Ape," with Boris Karloff in the title role, and giving everyone the creeps.

'Captain Caution' at Normandie

Normandie screen is showing "Captain Caution," with Victor Mature and Leo Carrillo, and "Money and the Woman," co-starring Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall, through Friday.

"International Settlement" and "There Goes My Heart," with Virginia Bruce, are the Bijou's features today and tomorrow.

Loretta Young and Don Ameche in "Alexander Graham Bell" and the Loretta Young-Ray Milland co-starrer, "The Doctor Takes a Wife," come to Tremont Theater tomorrow through Saturday.

Ameche, Betty Grable On Olympia Screen

"Down Argentine Way," starring Don Ameche, Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda, and "One Crowded Night," featuring Billie Seward and William Hardie, continue [illegible] Friday at the Washington St. Olympia.

NO THIRD TERM tradition was broken at an important election held in Boston yesterday . . . It's a first term for both Susan Simonds and Susan Strong who were elected chairman and co-chairman of the new members of Boston's exclusive Vincent Club . . .

Sixty-nine of the season's debutantes attained the chief goal of their "first year out" when they were admitted into Vincent's sacred circle and met for the first time at Vincent headquarters in the Hotel Somerset . . . After their election of officers the girls were greeted by older members at the club's annual fall luncheon . . . Three girls from the ranks of post debs and young marrieds were also chosen for membership, making the total of new enrollments 72 . . .

Arriving bright and early for the meeting were Betsy Ayer of Milton, wearing a scarlet velveteen dress with a scarlet facing on the upturned brim of her black hat . . . Her initials in gold were emblazoned on her large black purse . . . Alice Hupsaker set off her reddish gold hair with a wine velveteen dirndl style dress and had a huge black shirred wool pocketbook slung over her shoulder with a wide strap . . .

Red is easily the most popular color of the new debs, judging by the number who wore this cheery shade . . . Barsha Powers was in red velveteen from head to toe . . . Leslie Morgan's black crepe dress was brightened by a red flower turban and big red bag . . . Edith Lyman wore a gardenia corsage on her flame wool dress and tiny Alice Hurd wore a black wool dress with bands of scarlet Tyrolean embroidery from shoulder to hem.

Ruth Robb's Striking Dress

ONE OF THE most striking dresses was Ruth Robb's black velveteen two-piece suit made with shiny gold buttons down the front and an American Eagle embroidered in gold on one sleeve . . . She attended with Sister Sears and Alice Plummer. . . .

As the membership committee of the Vincent is also the casting office for the annual musical show, it is quite natural to expect that the girls chosen for membership should include the most talented and well known from each season's crop of debs . . . After Christmas when try-outs are held for the show it's safe to bet that Barbara Higginson, Barsha Powers, Rosita Richmond, Virginia Grant, Sylvia Choate, Deborah Law, and Barbara Ann Paine will be in the front line of chorines . . . They are all pretty and vivacious and would do justice to any of the traditional-Vincent dances . . .

Caroline Dabney, niece and namesake of the late Caroline Miller Dabney Parker who designed the cover of the Vincent show program, is also on the club's new roster . . . Her Tiger yellow wool dress was a perfect foil for her dark hair and eyes . . . She attended with her friend Cynthia Thorndike who wore beige jersey piped with green grosgrain, and a jaunty little Scotch plaid hat on her blonde hair . . . They were joined by Sally Newbold who will share honors with Cynthia at a dance at The Country Club next month.

Betty Breed Wears Black

BLONDE BETTY BREED wore a black outfit . . . Betty Maynard chose a beige tailored suit, and Constance Bradlee was a modish figure in a gray circular skirt, gray and red plaid jacket and a jaunty upturned gray felt hat . . .

The luncheon was also a grand reunion of older Vincent members . . . Mrs. Peter H. Thompson, Jr., who has just returned from a honeymoon cruise in southern waters, attended with Sandy Matz who set off her blonde hair with a hunter's great suit piped with red . . . Peggy Stuart, who has written music for many a Vincent show, wore a cocoa brown suit with beaver lapels as she dodged raindrops under Lucy Pope's umbrella . . . Mrs. H. Holton Wood of Cambridge, a recent bride, was welcomed by many of her old friends, and Mrs. Daniel Cheever (Olivia Thorndike) came in from her new home in Southboro . . .

She made a twosome with her sister-in-law, charming Jane Cheever who made a quick change from a practical hooded blue oilskin rain cape into a modish gray wool dress with a kidskin bolero and a becoming off-the-face veiled bonnet . . . Ellen Moseley topped her slim black coat with a gray feather turban and wore gold hoop earrings and a gold necklace for accent . . . Still others in the throng of luncheon guests were Jean Halladay, Ellen Bottomley, Cynthia Forbes, Ledlie Laughlin, bride-to-be of David Beckwith Rodd, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Jr., Mrs. Lincoln Dow, Jr., Elizabeth Jenney, Sally Reed, Martha Pervere with Hope Halsey, Priscilla Crocker, Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker, and of course, Mrs. James Parker 2nd, the Vincent's new prexy.

A HAPPY DEB TRIO

SALLY NEWBOLD, Cynthia Thorndike and Margot Black, a happy trio of new debutante members admitted to Boston's exclusive Vincent Club at the annual fall meeting at the Hotel Somerset yesterday. They are the daughters of Mrs. T. Jefferson Newbold, Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike and Mrs. Taylor Black.

Guild Gives County Fair

The Copley Plaza ballroom will be transformed into a typical New England scene Saturday, Nov. 16 for the all day County Fair to benefit the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

Mrs. Morgan T. Ryan, president of the Guild, announces that there will be fun for all and a wide variety of delicious food for sale. Among the committee chairmen are, Miss Mary A. Corcoran, treasurer of the Guild; Mrs. M. A. Spillane, luncheon committee; Miss Julia C. Prendergast, needlework; Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly and Mrs. Humphrey McCarthy, needlework; Mrs. Henry P. Cahill and Mrs. Harry C. McDonald, thrift table; Mrs. Joseph Stanton, cake and candy table; Mrs. George Warren Smith, farm and garden; and Mrs. Frank R. Breath, flowers.

LUNCHEON TO AID ALLIED RELIEF FUND

Miss Ella W. Saltonstall, Mr. S. Prescott Fay, Mrs. Ralph S. Richmond and Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole are among the many Bostonians planning to attend the luncheon sponsored by the Allied Relief Fund at noon tomorrow at the Parker House roof ballroom. Mr. Wallace Phillips, director general of American Ambulance-Great Britain, will be guest of honor and will tell of his experiences in the relief of civilian casualties in bombed areas of England.

Others planning to attend are Mrs. William Endicott, Mrs. William Brace Pratt, Mr. J. C. Phillips, Miss Lucy Clarendon Crehore, Mrs. Emily W. McKibbon, Mrs Horatio Lamb, Mrs. Harvey Bundy, Mrs. T. A. Lowell and Mr. Harold B. Hibbard.

JUNIOR LEAGUERS PICK YULE PLAY

The Junior League Players have chosen "Little Lord Fauntleroy" for their annual Christmas production and try-outs for the leading roles will be held at the League tomorrow and Friday mornings.

Friday's try-outs will provide an opportunity for the League's brand new members to reveal their acting ability, for they will be eligible to all League activities after they are welcomed at a tea in their honor tomorow afternoon.

Mrs. Wallace L. Pierce is in charge of publicity for the Christmas play.

Catholic Council Meets Sunday

The Alumni Council of Catholic Action will hold a Day of Recollection at Boston College on Sunday Nov. 17. The activities will open with a mass at 10 a. m., celebrated by Rev. Francis J. Coyne, S. J., of Boston College, spiritual director of the Alumni Council.

The conferences will be given by Rev. Francis E. Low, S. J., of the faculty of Boston College who will take for his general theme, "The Revolt Against God."

Dinner will be served and an informal period will follow. Another conference will be held and the day's activities will be brought to a close with benediction.

Officers of the Alumni Council of Catholic Action are Paul McManus of Dorchester, president; Fortunata Caliri of Roxbury, secretary, and Anne Laffin of Somerville, treasurer.

SALE WILL AID EX-SERVICE MEN

Mrs. Roger W. Babson of Wellesley, is opening her home Friday, Nov. 15, for an exhibition and sale of the work of disabled ex-service men of the World War. Handiwork on display is from the Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Exchange.

The sale is sponsored by the community service committee of Wellesley. Mrs. Babson is being assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Winslow L. Webber and Mrs. Edward W. Bancroft. Others assisting are Mrs. Louis T. Bartlett, Mrs. Harry N. Belt, Mrs. Frank E. Buxton, Mrs. Harry C. Gilbert, Mrs. Charles C. Beebe, Mrs. D. Allyn Bell, Mrs. Robert Studley, Mrs. John Oldham, Mrs. Paul Norton, Mrs. William H. Wright, Mrs. Roswell P. Young, Mrs. Stanley P. Young, Mrs. Howard White, Mrs. Josiah Whitney, Mrs. Edward L. Warner and Mrs. Howard Perrin. A silver tea will be served.

Try Turkey For Variety

By MARTHA LEE

YOU MAY be as one-track as you please in your clothes, or your home-decoration, but don't be one-track in your menu-planning.

Some people think they must alternate steak and chops. Others serve an occasional roast—at least on Sunday. It's altogether too easy to slip into habits, and think of meat in terms of seasons of the year.

Be really adventurous with your menus once in a while, and give the family a thrill by serving them roast turkey when they least expect it. Local turkey growers can get them to you: tender birds of delicious flavor—Massachusetts blue tag turkeys.

If your difficulty has been in using the last half of the turkey in an appetizing manner, some suggestions for return engagements may help.

TURKEY LEFT-OVERS

One simple good way is to pack a thin layer of boiled rice around the bottom and sides of custard cups. Fill with minced cooked turkey and turkey gravy. Cover with rice, dot with butter and heat thoroughly. Serve in the custard cups if you like, but it is more attractive turned out. Serve with hot, crisp rolls and salad.

Or cut left-over turkey in small pieces, add bits of stuffing and moisten with cream of mushroom soup. Put in greased, individual ramekins. Make a hollow in each, drop in an egg, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven until egg is set

TURKEY HASH

Some one is always making encouraging remarks about turkey hash. It really is one of the best dishes in the world, but of course the secret is all in the making. Seasonings may be of different kinds—perhaps a chopped green pepper, some sauted mushrooms, a little curry, Worcestershire sauce mustard, ketchup, salt and pepper, of course.

Add an equal amount of potatoes and blend with a little turkey gravy. Spread in a well-greased frying pan to brown, and fold like an omelet. Serve with crisp celery, ripe olives, baked bananas, or cranberry jelly.

And speaking of cranberry jelly—do you remember how long it used to take to make one batch of jellied cranberry sauce? Think of how easy it is today for the homemaker to serve delicious cranberry jelly, all prepared, all ready to use just by the turn of the wrist with the faithful little can-opener. Made right here in New England, every can has the same rich color the same mild-tart flavor, the same firm texture.

CREAMED TURKEY

2 cups turkey, cut in small pieces
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk
¼ tsp. pepper

Make a white sauce with butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Add turkey and heat throughly before serving.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

IT'S JUST another one of those letters. Hundreds of them a week. He isn't interested in her any more. How can he treat her so when she's been a good wife for eight years? "Never had a thought outside her home and husband."

Always been there when he wanted her. Never argued or nagged. Lived only for him. Hasn't even tried to have a life of her own.

And there, if she but knew it, is the secret of his indifference. She was an adventure when he courted her. He didn't know what she'd do next. She had a life of her own, then—a personality of her own.

And so, because she was outside him, because she had strange qualities, she tantalized and stimulated him.

Then she married him and stopped being herself. She stopped trying to think differently, act differently. She bent all her energies to bring a part of him—to doing things the way he liked them, to becoming his shadow, his echo. What happened? You know what happened. It always happens.

LITTLE BY LITTLE the mystery dropped from her and the charm faded. She became familiar, common—tiresome. He was bored and showed it. She couldn't understand.

Wasn't she doing everything possibly to please him? Then why wasn't he satisfied? Why was he so cold? When she cried and reproached him—his indifference turned to dislike. He had a queer feeling of resentment, as though she'd failed him—cheated him.

She had!

He married her because she was one thing. She turned out to be quite another. He married her because she was herself—a different self with strange, alluring qualities. Being another, different self she brought new interests and conflicts and adventure into his life and enlarged it.

And now she is no longer herself. She is only a tiresome repetition of himself. He doesn't want an echo or a shadow.

He wants an adventure. But she has deserted herself. She is no longer an adventure for him.

THAT'S WHY so many marriages fail. That's also why many individuals' lives fail.

Why are some people popular and powerful? That's why. They are different. And they treasure and develop that differentness. They keep themselves an adventure. And they stimulate and enlarge other lives because they are an adventure.

Why are some of the most conscientious, hard working people ignored. That's also why. They give nothing new to life because they do not try to be anything new. They are nothing in themselves and so they mean nothing to the other fellow.

BE YOURSELF. THAT'S THAT. MOST IMPORTANT DUTY TO YOURSELF . . . AND THE RACE.

BLONDIE

An Operator's Life's No Cinch!

What Has Happened:

A FIFTH COLUMN is again at work in England led by an elusive AJAX who is more menacing than Stuka bombers to the defense of the realm. The confessed treason of MARA, ace English spy, followed by the murder of Capt. Hugh Kenley, have put SIR JOHN SANDERSON, British Intelligence chief, in a grave position.

Sir John's ward, Brinda Duncan, had given a lift in her car to a limping stranger whom she mistook for an Englishman. But he was a Nazi parachutist and, when leaving Brinda's car, he shot Capt. Kenley . . . Brinda met LIEUT. RICHARD MALDEN, a former beau in the Intelligence Office's "rogues' gallery." He told her that his engagement to GLADYS, daughter of Lord and Lady Mountwyn, is to be announced that evening.

Brinda had unpleasant memories of Gladys as a schoolmate. But Sir John and his ward go to the Mountwyn party, where Gladys proudly showed off Prince VASLAV, described by Dick as "a sort of society entertainer." During a Vaslav-directed "blackout dance," Colonel Sanderson was stabbed.

DR. MacDONALD arrives to treat his old friend. When they are alone, Sir John murmurs, "I'll tell you something I couldn't tell any other living man." It was the story of Brinda's parentage. Her father killed by a tiger in India; her mother, years later, shot as a spy . . . Meanwhile, Brinda in the dark garden hears two guttural voices, one grumbling in German: "Ach, you bungled it!"

Now Continue:

MATA HARI'S Daughter

MAURICE DEKOBRA and LEVLA GEORGIE

"HURRY, you two," said Brinda's captor in German. "Help me with this wildcat."

Brinda kicked out wildly. But powerful fingers seized her legs and lifted her in the air. Blackness descended upon her head—some rough, heavy fabric. Hard fingers pressed against her jaws forcing her mouth open for the insertion of an improvised gag.

"Why take all this trouble?" demanded a voice. "Use the knife!"

"No," said her captor. Somewhere, sometime Brinda was sure she had heard that voice before. "No, I have a better way."

Brinda felt the covering over her head pulled a little aside. A faint, sickish odor assailed her nostrils. Her head swam dizzily. She seemed to be suffocating — then suddenly utter darkness . . . quiet . . . soundless, lightless oblivion.

The keen tang of swift-rushing country air . . . bonds biting into her ankles and wrists, a soreness in all her muscles, an acrid taste.

Brinda emerged from a darkness that seemed to have lasted for ages. Instinct rather than any reasoning process told her to remain motionless, to keep her eyes closed, to give no sign she had regained consciousness.

Gradually she became aware that she was in an amply-powered and smoothly-running motorcar. On either side she sensed the presence of a hard, compact, male body—doubtless the same men who had overpowered her.

After a long interval, one of them spoke . . . and Brinda was doubly glad then she had remained quiet.

It was the gutteral, hollow voice of the man who had taken the lead in the previous conversation.

"Our leader is growing soft," he said. "Why should he spare this English girl?"

"Halt's Maul!" snapped his companion. "It is our business to obey—not to think.'

"Mueller will have a word to say about it, I think."

"Mueller? Who is he?" contemptuously, "Just a strong man. An ox. Why should our leader listen to him?"

"Herr Himmler does not waste his parachutes on oxen. I suspect this Mueller is more important than we know."

TO HEADQUARTERS

"That's no matter. We have our orders and we'll take her to headquarters accordingly. After that—the Leader can do with her as he likes."

"I can imagine what that will be," said the first speaker, chuckling hoarsely. "Suppose we have a look at her."

"Nein!"

But, in spite of the command, a flashlight stabbed briefly at Brinda's closed eyelids. Almost as swiftly, the light was knocked aside.

"Nein!" came the older again.

The other man grunted angrily, "Ach! You're a regular tyrant. Can't a man look at a handsome Fraulein? Ach, she is a beauty! She doesn't look like one of the cold, English kind. I wonder if she is."

"Didn't you hear the Leader say so?"

"Yes, that's true. Well, I don't blame him now so much. A man with such responsibilities is entitled to some fun."

"Kush! Kush!" the man of the rasping voice again. "You talk too much."

Peering ever so carefully beneath her long lashes, Brinda saw that there was a third man in the car, hunched over the wheel.

Desperately, Brinda considered her situation. It would be hours before Sir John would miss her. Naturally, he would assume she had joined the others in the drawing-room. As for Dick—he would be with Gladys—making love to her no doubt—accepting congratulations on their engagement.

"What's that?" It was the man on her right. "There's a car after us. Fritz! Better a little more speed."

BRINDA FIGHTS

The car bounded forward. Brinda realized that both her captors were leaning from the window looking backward.

"He's almost on us!" cried one, excitedly.

"Wait till he's nearer! Hand me the gun!"

The car rocked and swerved. There was a stab of headlights—then a clear English voice calling: "Here you chaps! Throttle down . . . pull up!"

Was it Dick's voice or just her imagination?

Brushing against Brinda in his haste, one of the men raised and leveled an ugly looking sub-machine gun.

"Shoot!" exclaimed his companion. "Give it to the English dogs!"

Again, came the English voice: "Halt, there!" It was Dick!

Brinda, in spite of her bonds, contrived by a tremendous effort, to throw herself forward so that her whole weight was suddenly precipitated upon the gunman. There was a deafening rattle of shots followed by a shriek of metal and hard locked tires.

A mighty, invisible hand seemed to lift Brinda and hurl her backward. A bullet sang by her ear. Glass shattered. Then a jarring shock . . . silence.

Gradually Brinda fought her way out of the darkness of unconsciousness. Later, she was crawling along a road, head without lights, apparently feeling its way through the fog that blanketed the moors.

Pain stabbed at her eyelids. She closed her eyes and leaned back against the cushion. One of the men spoke in German. Her dazed mind struggled with the words, translated them. She she knew they were almost at their destination.

Presently the tires gnawed at the gravel of a driveway. Opening her eyes she saw the dark bulk of a house looming above. A rough hand seized her arm.

"Out!" the man beside her said. "No tricks now . . . or you die!" He spoke in English.

She stumbled out, let the cold night air clear her mind. Looking at the dark structure she knew what fear was for a moment fear for her own safety. Then another fear took its place—fear for Dick! Was he dead? It was his voice that had called to them. She shuddered, remembering the sound of the shots, the smash of glass and the screech of tortured metal. A sob fought its way up into her throat and she stifled it.

"Inside!" her captor said gruffly. She was pulled up the stairs and across a stone porch to a heavy door. Someone rapped three times on the panel. There was the sound of footsteps coming toward them. The door swung open and she saw the dim form of a man in the doorway.

"Another one?" the man asked in a monotonous voice, speaking in German. "The liquidate?"

"Not yet." Brinda's captor replied. "We are to wait." He laughed without humor. "Wait for the leader! Such folly!"

The other stepped aside. Brinda was pushed inside and the door swung to behind them. The hallway was so dimly lighted that she could not make out the features of the men. Both were big, with heavy shoulders, and their voices were deeply pitched. She found herself led down the hall to a door and through it down a flight of steps. Then the door slammed and she was alone in total darkness.

A LIVING TOMB

Terror returned. For a little while, she was not the assured young woman who had plunged thoughtlessly into the heart of terrible danger. She was a child, shut up in a dark, musty-smelling cellar—for she knew by the clamminess of the place that she was underground—and tears sprang into her eyes, coursing down her cheeks. Brinda sat on the bottom steps and put her head in her arms and sobbed bitterly. What was she to do? Dick was dead, no doubt. And pretty soon she would be dead, too.

Soon the man they called the leader would come. And then they would drag her out of the dark place and she would stand before him and hear herself sentenced to die. Or, perhaps, it wouldn't be as pleasant as death. She shuddered. Sandy had been right. She should have kept out of it. She should have followed his advice. But how could she keep out when hearing important information?

It wasn't sensible, she thought, to get depressed. There was still hope. She hadn't seen Dick die after all. And maybe there was a way out of this place. She found a handkerchief in the pocket of her coat and wiped the tears away. She fumbled in the pocket and found cigarettes and a packet of matches. The match flamed as she lit a cigarette and, looking around, she saw her prison, a square room with stone walls and a stone floor. There were no windows. Hope died again.

Then instinct, quick and alert, told Brinda there was another presence in the room. She held her breath, listened. Over there to the left . . . Something moving very softly. Should she light another match? Fear made her tremble.

Then something brushed against her leg. She repressed a scream. Then she wasn't afraid any more. A cat! Only a lovely cat!

Her hand found the cat's warm body, and she took comfort from the animal's presence. The cat was purring contentedly. They always adored her. She lifted it into her lap and scratched its ears. "My sweet," she said aloud. "My kitten! Where did you come from?"

She asked the question idly. Then a frown wrinkled her forehead. Where had it come from? Not down the stairs, surely. Had it been in the room when the door had swung behind her? No. She had surveyed her prison thoroughly when she lit the match. There must be another entrance then, an entrance large enough to admit the cat. Perhaps it would be large enough to permit her to escape from this place.

COULD SHE ESCAPE?

Getting to her feet, Brinda crossed the wall and taking the paper of matches out, struck one and by its light surveyed the stones.

Carefully she moved around the room, striking match after match. Then in front of her she saw what she sought—a crevice in the stones. It was through this undoubtedly that the cat had come to save her.

Again, the cat rubbed against her bare ankles and, stopping she picked it up and held it against her breast for a moment, joy stirring within her.

"Thank you, pussy," she breathed. "Thank you so very much!"

But she wasn't out yet. She had only found a hole in the wall of her prison—large enough for a cat but not large enough for a woman. Yet she must find somewhere—and it might lead to freedom.

Brinda thrust a slender hand into the opening gingerly. Her fingers touched smooth, polished wood. She felt the wood move beneath them, and a draft of mouldy air suddenly assailed her.

She forward. What could it be? She tried the stone with her fingers and wished as a nail broke. But the stone had moved. Exerting all her scant strength, she pulled again and this time it yielded. She lit her last match, and gave a quick gasp of delight.

She knew now. The moving board was the opening to a walled-up dumbwaiter shaft. Evidently, this room had once been the kitchen of the house on the moor. The shaft, no doubt, connected with an up stairs dining room.

Wife Unhappy 12 Years Freed

A Malden wife who testified she hasn't had a happy day in the last 12 years was granted a divorce while the case of an Arlington husband who said his wife often accused him falsely of running around with other women was under advisement today in Middlesex Probate Court.

Married in 1917, Mrs. Sadie Lamkin of Cross st., Malden, testified that her husband, Morris, slapped her frequently and that unhappiness has been her lot since her husband's family came from Europe in 1928.

In addition to questioning his fidelity, his wife once upset a pot of tea on him and on another occasion hit him with a dish of ice-cream, Richard LaCroix of Arlington, testified.

AUSTEN LAKE

B. C.'s Scout Brings Back Terror Tale of the Hoyas

EACH SATURDAY FOR THREE WEEKS Ed McKeever, B. C.'s chief football sleuth, has perched on the rim of college stadia and jotted down memorabilia on Georgetown's play-habits. McKeever has worn down fagots of pencils, filled a ledger with loose leaf notes and become bleary from peering through his binoculars. But now his job is done. Today he takes his trade-secrets to a class room and lectures the B. C. boys on how to halt Haggerty's single-wing-back style and what to do when Jawgt'n spreads across the field.

AUSTEN LAKE

McKeever is no alarmist, but he is genuinely impressed with Georgetown as the equal of Notre Dame, Cornell and Minnesota and one of the Nation's collosi. Not just a question of one good team, but of two full sets of matched athletes. For big time college football among the top-crusters has become a matter of sending out alternate waves of fresh athletes until the opposition is worn thin and ready to crumble. Notre Dame did it against Navy last week. Cornell does it every Saturday. So Georgetown is abreast of the latest trend—a two-team unit! Count 'em, TWO!

McKeever says, and he is sincere, that Georgetown is a bigger physical group than B. C., which has been regarded hereabouts as a super-sized unit weighing more than a ton in the aggregate. But G. U.'s line will run 210 to the individual and you don't heave that kind of gristle and bone about with a wiggle of the torso. In fact one of the mental pictures in this writer's memory-album is of the day last autumn while officiating the Syracuse-Georgetown game. During a time-out Al Blozis, a dreadnaught type of the size and height of the pituitary giant, Primo Carnera, asked please, would I adjust the chin strap of his helmet. The writer did, reached a full arm length upward on tippy-toe, like something out of Walt Disney's animated cartoon of a midget Lilliputian among the Giants of Brobdignagia.

40 Per Cent Better Than 1939

THAT 1939 GEORGETOWN TEAM was good. But says McKeever, and an echo comes from NYU's Mal Stevens, this one is better! How much better? Ohhh, thirty or forty per cent, says Dr. Mal, who gives the pessimistic report that the Hoyas should administer B. C. a nice, two-tone Duco finish with a coat of varnish. "They love to knock people down and step on them," he says. Still, among the male mountains I have seen this year, B. C. aren't exactly foothills themselves. And, as McKeever says, the bigger the footstool the higher B. C.'s reach for the National cookies. There's a bowl waiting on them thar shelves!

McKeever candidly finds that G. U.'s "A" backfield of Lou Ghecas, Julius Koshlap, Jim Castiglia and Tom McFadden is the equal of any plunge-block-run-pass combination he has ever seen. "They've never been tested—yet!" he said, telling with prayerful admiration how he had sat last month on the slopes of the North Philadelphia stadium and watched Castiglia wade 60 yards in five and eight yard bursts. "Every time he hit that Temple line the crowd gasped 'Ooooo,'" he said. "It didn't seem that human bones could take that kind of impact and he had that Temple line looking like a set of old ladies holding down their bustles in a hurricane." And yet the high scorer of the Georgetown squad is a "B" team sophomore with a National sprint-rating who resembles Holy Cross' unforgetable Bill Osmanski—Johnny Doolan by name.

And yet, said Ed hastily, lest it seem like praising the enemy, he

GEORGETOWN 'SELLOUT' SAVES FOOTBALL AT B. C.

By BILL GRIMES

For the moment, let's look at the coming Boston College-Georgetown game, not as the outstanding gridiron classic of the week or season, or as the finals in the eliminations for a post-season Bowl bid but from the viewpoint of what a "sell out" will mean to the future of football at "The Heights."

Saddled with a heavy debt acquired by the cost of erecting its new Alumni Field, Boston College decided to go "big time" in football four years ago.

The B. C. authorities were told that Gil Dobie would be the man of the hour. He'd put Boston College across in a big way. Dobie was imported from Cornell and tendered a three-year contract at a salary of $10,000 per annum.

But the new set-up failed to produce.

SELECTION A SURPRISE

Contrary to the statements of the party who recommended Dobie, Boston College was unable to improve its schedule and its football elevens didn't acquire nation-wide fame. For three years the Eagles remained in the football doldrums and at the end of that period gridiron enthusiasts west of the Alleghenys still were unable to distinguish between Boston College and Boston University. And, with the stalling of its plans to crash "big time" football, Boston College went even deeper into the "red."

Then Boston College decided to go on another tack. In the first place it wanted a coach who understood conditions at Catholic colleges and one who had a loyal following among his fellow coaches.

When John P. Curley announced that Boston College had selected Frank W. Leahy, Notre Dame '31, to be head coach, the alumni were stunned. Who was Leahy? Where had he coached?

Despite the fact that only a very small minority of Boston College football enthusiasts had ever heard of him, Frank Leahy has made the Eagles a by-word in every section of the country in less than two seasons as head coach.

MADE BOWL IN ONE YEAR

For the first time in its football annals, Boston College crashed the sports pages throughout the width and breadth of the land when it was invited to meet Clemson in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas last January. True, the Eagles had been set back by the University of Florida but that verdict swung to the 'Bators on a questionable decision. And they were also beaten by the Tigers in Texas. But they crashed into "big time" football under Head Coach Frank Leahy, who, in one short season, had developed a powerful, smooth functioning machine, and, who had the foresight to select as his backfield coach, Ed McKeever, a Texan with sufficient influence in his home state to manipulate Boston College into the Cotton Bowl.

The left-wings counter with the assertions that Frank Leahy fell heir to a great squad whom he took over at B. C. Possibly, they're right. But, it wasn't going any place. And under Leahy, it made a Bowl in one year, and is now more than half way through the greatest of all B. C. football campaigns.

A year ago, football at Boston College was in jeopardy. The Eagles couldn't go on year after year showing a deficit in football. B. C. is not a football college. It's a Jesuit institution—a stepping stone to the priesthood and the professions. It wasn't established to be used as a path to football fame, nor would it countenance any such guile.

It's been years since Boston College has cashed in as profitably on a mid-season game as it will Saturday.

The Eagles and the Hoyas are two of the eight undefeated and untied major elevens in the country. They are the top scorers, with B. C. setting the pace with 261 points and Georgetown the runner up, with 247. They've run roughshod over all opponents this season and the Hoyas have gone through 23 games without a defeat.

So, thanks to Frank Leahy and Jack Haggerty, on Saturday Fenway Park will be jammed to the very limit of its capacity. The nationwide publicity is priceless to both institutions. The game is a "natural" and, instead of showing a $4500 deficit as it did after Georgetown's last appearance here, Boston College should acquire a nest egg of approximately $30,000, which should prove to the "Doubting Thomases" that football under the Leahy regime is a paying proposition.

Boston College is now definitely in "big time" football.

LITTLE NAPOLEAN. That's Jack Hagerty, 1921 all-scholastic back at Dorchester High, who is bringing his Georgetown Power Company here to meet Boston College Saturday. Hagerty enhanced his gridiron fame at Georgetown and with the New York pro Giants before returning to his alma mater.

Reynolds Elected Captain of Exeter

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 13—Gunnard Reynolds of Leominster, Mass., succeeded John Kirmil of Lawrence to the captaincy of Phillips Exeter football team for next season. Reynolds is the wingback and in addition, is a good placekicker.

Storm Upsets Secret Practice Of Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 13—Next winter, when the coaches gather and tell stories, you'll probably hear some good ones about Elmer Layden's troubles trying to hold secret practice at Notre Dame.

There was a secret session scheduled yesterday while the Irish learned new plays for the Iowa game, but it was more or less public—because Monday's storm blew down four sections of the Cartier field fence.

Blackhawks Trounce Bruins in Wide Open Game at Garden, 6-5

By BILL GRIMES

In a wide-open free-scoring game, the Chicago Blackhawks moved into first place in the N. H. L. race by nosing out the Bruins 6 to 5 last night at the Boston Garden.

Despite the fact that the Bruins were on the short end when the final whistle blew, the 8000 rabid fans, who braved the rain to attend the opener, were satisfied that at least they had seen a thrilling match.

The Hawks stepped out in front in the first period and managed to retain the edge over the Rossmen through the hectic contest. At half time in the second chapter, the Bruins were trailing by three goals and had yet to beat Paul Goodman.

BAUER UNLUCKY

The third period was a wild 20 minutes. The Bruins were two goals down going into this chapter and dropped back one more in less than three minutes. But, from that point on, they outscored the Hawks, nicking Goodman for four tallies while Frankie Brimsek kicked aside all but two Chicago shots.

With the Bruins behind one goal, and two seconds remaining to play, Bobby Bauer hit the left upright on the cage. Had that shot been just a fraction of an inch to the right, it would have sent the game into overtime.

There wasn't a great deal of good hockey played during the opening period, during which Mush March intercepted a Herbie Cain pass deep in Boston territory and rifled a shot into the cage for the first of the eleven goals, which were destined to beat the cage minders.

HAWKS CASH IN

That was Break No. 1 for the Hawks.

Then, in the middle stanza, Earl Seibert, the Hawks defense man, fired from the right wing boards. The shot was right on Brimsek but it was traveling at such a terrific rate of speed that it rebounded to the left lane boards almost out to the blue line. Bill Thoms was right in the path of the rebounding puck and drove it back over the same course that it had traveled getting out to him. And the Hawks led 2 to 0.

That was Break No. 2.

Two minutes later, the Hawks came up with their first legitimate marker on a beautiful combination play by George Allen and Bill Carse, the former converting the latter's pass into a goal.

Realizing that if they didn't get down to playing some serious hockey they were going to be swamped, the Bruins opened up. Art Wiebe was sent to the penalty box for holding Bill Cowley and the Kraut line, with Bill Hollett who, incidentally was the fastest man on the ice last night, filling in for the injured Woodie Dumart at left wing, came on.

PACE STEPPED UP

Even though they were shorthanded the Hawks managed to hold off the Krauts and they were still three goals up going into the 15th minute. Then, Doug Bentley was sent off for interference and came the Krauts. And, on this occasion they met with better success for, after Capt. Dit Clapper had taken the puck from his own zone deep into the Hawks' territory, he passed to Milt Schmidt for the first Bruin goal.

The Bruins were still two goals down at the beginning of the last period and their cause looked like a hopeless one when George Allen grabbed his own rebound and beat Brimsek for the fourth Chicago tally.

For a Chicago team which hadn't beaten them here since March, 1938, to pile up a three-goal lead with only 17 minutes to play, was too much for the Rossmen to take sitting down. So they stormed in on the Hawks, and the game speeded up and roughened noticeably. Bill Cowley picked up a loose puck at the Hawks' blue line, whipped it across to Des Smith who in turn passed it down the left wing boards to Roy Conacher who shot from an impossible scoring angle. The puck hit on the outside of Goodman's right leg pads and was deflected into the cage. But, about two minutes later, Bill Carse converted a pass from Johnny Chad into the fifth Chicago goal, and again the Bruins were in a "tight" spot.

FANS LIKED OPEN PLAY

On a three-man attack with Milt Schmidt and Bill Hollett, Bobby Bauer scored, cutting the Bruin deficit down to two goals.

The Hawks didn't make any attempts to protect their lead. Instead they continued to attack

Scotty Bowman Given Release

DETROIT, Nov. 13 (AP)—Jack Adams, general manager of the Detroit Red Wings hockey club, announced the outright release today of Ralph (Scotty) Bowman, defense man who helped bring the Wings two Stanley Cups.

Bowman, who started last season as a regular, has been waived from both the National and American Hockey leagues, Adams said. He came to Detroit from St. Louis in 1935, along with Syd Howe, for a price reported to be $50,000.

CUBS RELEASE HARTNETT

CHICAGO Nov. 13 (AP)—Philip K. Wrigley, president of the Chicago Cubs, said today that Gabby Hartnett's contract as manager of the team will not be renewed when it expires Dec. 31.

"We are announcing this decision now," said Wrigley, "as soon as we know it ourselves, both out of fairness to Hartnett and because we believe the fans expect and are entitled to know what's what about their ball club. The success or failure of the club does not depend on any one person, but rather on getting the right combination, both on the team and throughout the entire organization.

HARTNETT FAULTLESS

"We are not blaming Hartnett—he has done everything he could, but we feel it is up to us to try and keep on trying to get the best possible combination of personnel to produce the best possible results. We may be wrong, but at least we are trying.

"Several names are under consideration for the position of Cub manager in 1941. All the men we would like are under contract and their names cannot be discussed until we have made definite arrangements with them and their present employers."

GABBY HARTNETT
Cast Adift

Hartnett, veteran catcher of the Cubs, succeeded Charlie Grimm as manager during the 1938 season and led the team to the National League championship. The Cubs finished fourth in 1939 and fifth last season.

The announcement terminated Hartnett's connection with the Cubs, which began in 1922.

Gabby said: "Was it a surprise!" He appeared with Wrigley shortly after the announcement was made and remarked: "Oh, well, it's one of those things. I have no plans. I'm going to try to stay in baseball, but I have no idea what I'll do."

WRIGLEY REGRETS MOVE

"It hasn't been particularly pleasant to do this," Wrigley said. "We thought that in fairness to the team we had better buckle down and do something for the team.

"We'll have to get waivers on him, as I understand it." Wrigley continued, pointing out that Hartnett was listed on the club roster as a player-manager. "As I said, it hasn't been pleasant because he's been connected with the club for a long time."

School Rifle Ranges Busy These Days As Youths Prepare for Hearst Shoot

An amazing amount of rifle shooting competition keeps the rifle ranges of high schools and junior high schools of New England constantly going.

Figures just announced by the National Rifle Association in Washington disclose the fact that there are more than 75 such junior marksmanship organizations in this section.

That number is exclusive of some 30 clubs listed in the state of Connecticut alone. Connecticut, however, is not listed in the New England ranks for the mammoth William Randolph Hearst Citizen's Marksmanship Competition or the Hearst Junior Rifle Trophy Competition.

Connecticut will compete in the New York area where the Hearst rifle shoot is being conducted along self same lines and at a corresponding time with that being held in New England under the sponsorship of the Boston American-Record.

Of these 75 New England junior clubs, a great many of them are recognized schoolboy teams and a surprising number represent girls' teams.

And when it comes to the Hearst shoot, both senior and junior in classification, the girls and women may and are welcome to compete against the boys in the junior championships and the men in the senior title going.

ALMOST ALL IN TOURNEY

Among the Massachusetts high schools which regularly conduct junior rifle clubs are: Norwood, North Quincy, Merrimac, Malden, Haverhill, Brockton, High School of Commerce, Boston English, Boston Latin, Boston Trade, Melrose, Beverly, Quincy, Longmeadow and several others. Not a few have both girls and boys teams and several junior high schools are also found in the lists.

Added to these are: Boy Scout teams, Sea Scouts, Y. M. C. A., R. O. T. C., academy and college teams too numerous to mention.

With few exceptions these sharpshooters will be found on the Hearst firing line when the winter shooting classic gets underway in the near distant future.

thought that B. C. had the solution for Doolan, Ghecas & Co. The solution he thought might be Chet Gladchuck, the 233 pound roving center who helped smear Tulane and Temple and likes nothing better than stopping an irresistable force with his chin, unless it be stopping that same force with his forehead. For the time, said McKeever, to halt Doolan and Ghecas was at the line of scrimmage before either got up a head of steam. Because once in the open there doesn't seem to be any solution at all unless you get 'em by their belt loops or their ears. Sooooo! B. C. would crash its ends in fast instead of fading them cautiously back, trusting such prizemen as Gene Goodreault and Henry Woronicz to develop Georgetown plays prematurely and chase them into the center alley for the "kill." That's the theory!

A Customer's Game

THIS SHOULD BE A CUSTOMER'S GAME, one of those dish-it-out and take-it-all affairs where the tide flows in alternate directions till something busts. From what I have seen of both teams these last two years they are as similar in material and method as the examples of automotive art which come off the same Detroit assembly lines.

Take for example B. C.'s Charley O'Rourke and G. U.'s Jule Koshlap, rival pass specialists. There is the legend that Koshlap is an ambidextrous, two-handed, heaver who fires them with either fin. But McKeever said, though he'd heard the tale, he'd only seen Koshlap flip them from the right, which was ample enough! Good as O'Rourke? Hmmmmmmm . . . Yes!

How much of the sheaves of information which McKeever has brought back to B. C. he can successfully pass along to his kids and how much will percolate, is a question. Next week there will be another dose of defensive data on Auburn to digest and after that another on Holy Cross. So big time college today resolves into higher mathematics with the players forced to assimilate more condensed culture on the gridiron than in any course of the academic curriculum. Georgetown's spy system has been just as busy studying B. C. So, in the end, both sides know as much about the other. And no doubt at this minute Georgetown's scouts are telling ghost-stories and fright-tales about the predatory Boston Eagle, attempting to scare their lads to greater effort. Wouldn't it be funny if the stories both tell about the other come true.

FORMER CHAMPS VIE ON ARENA MAT

Steve Casey, former mat champion, will rule a slight favorite to down Yvon Robert, another ex-titlist, when they meet in the main event of Promoter Paul Bowser's weekly wrestling tournament tonight at the Arena.

And this despite the fact that Robert recently polished off Ed Don George, another champ on comeback trail, in nice style and thus became one of the top contenders for the world's title.

Steve will dig out his old Kerry Flip, according to plan. It seems that he relied almost exclusively on it when he first came here and then got fancy and tried the more intricate holds. And when he got fancy he lost his world's title. So it's back to the Kerry Flip for Steve.

The boys are about evenly matched in weight, but Steve admittedly is the stronger. However, Yvon flies around the ring with the greatest of ease and the matter of speed is greatly in his favor.

In the semi-final, Joe Cox, meets Frank Judson, while preliminaries will include: Leo Numa vs. Jim Wallis; Frank Beel vs. Jim Spencer, and George Mansor vs. Andy Brown.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

HARVARD MEN have taken kindly to my suggestion that the starting of fall football practice be moved from Sept. 15 to Sept. 1 to enable Dick Harlow to get his players into proper physical condition for their hard schedule . . . The 1940 list of Crimson games was referred to as a "suicide" schedule . . . With Harvard refusing to subsidize football players in any form, Harlow should at least have received an opportunity to get his eleven prepared for its early season games.

CHARLEY SPREYER

Other than in the Michigan defeat, and that happened in an early season game when the players were not physically fit, Harvard has looked good on the gridiron . . . A few breaks would have given it victories over Penn, Dartmouth, Army and Princeton . . . What has only been a mediocre season for Harvard could have been a great one if the football squad had been called out for practice two weeks earlier.

The Harvard-Brown clash at the Stadium on Saturday, which when arranged shaped up as a minor contest, should prove one of the most thrilling battles of the season . . . Tuss McLaughry has come up with a great football team at Brown, while Harvard is finally clicking.

The football Solomons have finally found out Harvard has one of the best college lines in the East . . . Give the Crimson backfield power and it can go places in its games with Brown and Yale . . . Charley Spreyer looked impressive as Harvard held Penn to a 10 to 10 tie, and he should be a tower of strength in Harvard's remaining games.

Peckingpaugh Solid Baseball Man

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, who has once more been signed to manage the Cleveland Indians, is a solid baseball man. He is a keen student of the national pastime, and he has the respect of all persons who know him.

Peckinpaugh knows the Cleveland baseball situation as he managed the Indians from 1928 until he lost his job in 1933. Peckinpaugh was relieved of the management of the Indians while the club was in a losing streak, and it was being panned by the sports writers and fans.

At the time President Alva Bradley declared that "the owner only hires a manager, that the public fires him."

Bradley now brings Peckinpaugh back to the Cleveland club, and he earnestly hopes he will be able to win a pennant. If Peckinpaugh is to succeed, he will have to overcome the cry-baby tendencies of some of the Cleveland players.

These cry-babies petitioned President Bradley last June to fire Oscar Vitt as manager on the ground they couldn't win for him. At the time Bradley refused to let Vitt go and the club started a sensational winning streak that carried it into first place.

When the pressure was applied by the Tigers and Yanks in the closing months of the pennant race, the cry-babies seized their rattles and climbed into their high chairs. The Tigers then went on to win the pennant.

A club with a pitcher like Bob Feller should have beaten the Tigers, and the Indians would have done so if it had not been for internal dissension.

Peckinpaugh, wise in the affairs of baseball, may be able to control the Indians' cry-babies, and if he does the club has an excellent chance to win the American League pennant next season. The Tigers won this year because the Indians refused to do so rather than because they possessed any great amount of baseball class.

No club with a weak shortstop like Dick Bartell and an aging second baseman like Charley Gehringer has any right to win a pennant.

Reds' F. McCormick Chosen Most Valuable N. L. Player

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Frank McCormick, sturdy first baseman for the world champion Cincinnati Reds, was the National League's most valuable player in 1940, a committee for the Baseball Writers' Ass'n of America announced today.

The tall, good-looking youngster from New York, who joined the Reds three years ago and has played in each of their games since, didn't have his best season, but it was a good one, and vital to the Reds.

He hit .300 and drove in 127 runs, as compared with a 1939 batting average of .322 and 128 runs batted in.

Last year, he was rated fourth in the annual balloting by 24 veteran baseball scribes, three from each National League city. This year he was first, getting 16 of the 24 votes for first place and 274 points, 69 more than Johnny Mize, slugging first sacker of the St. Louis Cardinals, who also was second in 1939.

The reason for the rise of McCormick in contradiction of the figures in the record books is easily apparent. Last year, the Reds captured the pennant on mainly pitching, but this year their hurling was less effective, and they depended on tight defensive play and the ability to punch across runs at the right time.

This was where McCormick figured—the best defensive first baseman in the league, second only to Mize in runs batted in, the leader in doubles and tied for the lead in total hits. He gave the Reds their pennant punch.

FRANK McCORMICK

McCormick was the third consecutive Cincinnati player to be voted the honor, which carries with it an award by The Sporting News. In 1938, Catcher Ernie Lombardi led the league in batting and was named most valuable last year, Pitcher Bucky Walters led in victories and earned the most valuable designation with 303 points out of a possible 320.

One reason McCormick did not dominate the annual poll this year as Walters did last was the competition of his own teammates. No fewer than five of the Reds received votes. Five others were accorded honorable mention, and in the final compilation of points Walters rated third with 186 and Paul Derringer, fourth with 124.

Mize was the first choice of six of the committeemen, but Lombardi and Derringer each received one first-place vote.

Alice Marble's Loss Blow to Court Moguls

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (INS)—The loss of Alice Marble to the irresistible blandishments of the professionals heeled with a $25,000 bankroll is possibly the most severe blow suffered by the United States Lawn Tennis Ass'n in the 60 years of its haughty existence.

The association's reaction today to Miss Marble's switch into the professional ranks was an off-the-record, hollow cackle and an air of utter concern. Nevertheless, they don't know what they are going to use for an attraction next year, and their plight has never been quite this bad before.

LACK DRAWING POWER

The other women players, capable as they may be, are not exactly a bunch of box office magnets, and the men can't put forward anybody to offset the loss of this ace performer, who is regarded by some as the greatest woman player of them all.

She can't be ranked worse than among the all-time first three in any case, and her passing means that there is scarcely an amateur left capable of drawing house rent.

A generation which had seen Bill Tilden and Don Budge never did cotton up to Bobby Riggs and may be equally aloof with his successor as national champion, Don McNeill.

But they accepted Miss Marble, even while remembering Suzanne Lenglen and the Helen Wills of old. You can see that there is a yawning void now where Miss Marble used to be in the amateur ranks.

Her loss comes at a bad time for other reasons, too. Unlike most other sports, tennis in this country thrives to some extent on those periodic transfusions of foreign blood—Borotra, Brugnon, Lacoste, Lenglen, Von Cramm, Perry, Quist, Bromwich and the rest.

The war has put an end to that. Mary Hardwick of England is here, but isn't expected to remain among the amateur, any longer than it will take for her to get an answer from home. Reportedly, she is going to join Miss Marble, upon receipt of expected consent.

GATE DUE FOR HIT

Wimbledon is full of bomb-holes and the war has eliminated the all-England championships; the Wightman Cup and Davis Cup matches are out indefinitely for the same reason; Forest Hills, the tennis capital, is trying to figure a way to get up some scratch for Mr. Whiskers' tax collectors, Miss Marble has turned professional and bingo isn't dignified. Gate receipts are going to be in a slump, putting it another way.

Despite rules and precedent, out of all this may come eventually an event that would be known as the men's and women's national open tennis championships, similar to the open golf tournaments which bring amateur and professional golfers together without apparent harm to either group.

Capital Sextet Play New Haven

By the Associated Press

While Cleveland and Springfield those two flying leaders in the American Hockey League, are idle tonight some of the others get their chances to make it look more like a race.

With some eight points apiece, the Cleveland Barons and the Springfield Indians are in no immediate danger of being overtaken. Tonight's pair of games sends the Philadelphia Ramblers to Pittsburgh and the Indianapolis Capitals to New Haven. Philadelphia which has the best record of any of these four, is third in the league's eastern division with four points.

Cocozza Show On Quincy Card

Studded with outstanding boxers will be the finals in Jimmy Gardner's Diamond Belt amateur boxing tournament next Friday night at Quincy Arena.

There will be plenty of action all through the fast card, and the fans are promised laughs again through the appearance of Mike Cocozza, 147-pound Haverhill lad, who does everything the hard way, and Charlie Moore, promising 160-pounder.

A promising newcomer who may be seen is Mal Manning of South Boston, the City Hospital orderly and National Guard light-heavy champ, who had the misfortune to strip an ankle tendon in his first public appearance at Boston Arena a few weeks ago. If the ankle is right on Friday, Manning will be in there.

Gopher Coach Fears Purdue

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 13 - The Minnesota Gophers may be headed for the western conference championship and possibly the mythical national title, but Coach Bernie Bierman hasn't any illusions about finding soft spots in their own league.

"If you let down against Purdue next Saturday, you'll be beaten sure," he warned his squad. "You will find them almost as strong as Michigan, Northwestern and Ohio State."

Army Boxers In 'All' Show

The United States Army produced many good fighters during the World War, what with Bob Martin, Gene Tunney and others, and the new draft army of this era promises to do likewise.

The first entries for the second all-America elimination amateur boxing tournament, to be held at the Arena next Monday, came from Rosaire Guilbault, Co. B, Quarter Master Division, 135-pounder, and Francis Thibodeau, from the same outfit, 147-pounder.

Both boys are in tip-top condition due to their army training, and promise to show well in their first trial in amateur competition.

There will be bouts in 12 classes again next Monday, including eight championship classes and four for novices. The novice four are 118-pound, 135-pound, 160-pound and heavyweight.

All entries must be filed with Tom Kanaly at the Arena, and the management of the All-America Conclave wish to impress upon all competitors that all entries must be made in writing and must be filed before midnight on the Saturday before the show. No post entries will be accepted, and boxers who wait until Monday night will find to their bitter disappointment that they will be unable to box.

Other preliminary shows will be held at the Arena on Nov. 25 and Dec. 2. Then on Dec. 9, at Boston Garden, the winners in each class of the four tryouts, both open and novice boxers, will battle for New England All-America championships.

Pics Open In Baltimore

The Boston Oympics entrained at 9 o'clock this morning from the South Station, heading for Baltimore where they will play the Orioles of that city tonight in the opening game of the Eastern Amateur League.

The party numbered 15. The rest of the group, which include Frankie Spain, Junie Allen, Bob Jeremiah and Dan Sullivan, will board a plane this afternoon leaving the E. B. airport at 2:50.

Tonight's game will mark the first time a Boston team has ever competed in the fast Eastern circuit although several teams from this district have played exhibition games in Baltimore, New York, and Atlantic City.

Following this tilt, the 'Pics return to the Garden Friday night to open their home season against the Washington Eagles.

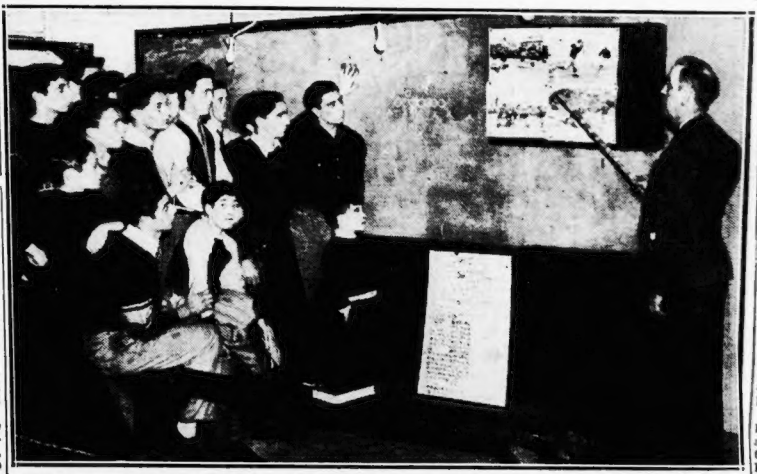
Those who left this morning are Coach Hago Harrington, Vic Polich, Ty Anderson, Cliff Thompson, Bill Splaine, Al Yourkowicz, Bob Campbell, Buddy Foster, Gerry Desrosiers, Junie Stubbs, Jack Costello and Bill Linski and Eddie Arronson, trainers.

Behind Goal Posts

Since the forward pass was legalized in collegiate football in 1906 it has developed into a potent offensive weapon and a major thrill for fans . . . the Gus Dorais to Knute Rockne passing combination in 1913 swamped Army, 35-13, and first revealed the possibilities of accurate passing . . . Michigan counted heavily on Friedman's heaves to Oosterbaan and the '25 Dartmouth aerial circus of Oberlander to Tully and Sage buried a strong Chicago eleven, 33-7, and Harvard, 32-9 . . . Holy Cross grads speak reverently of Phil O'Connell's air mail delivery to the "grand opera twins," Cavalieri and Colucci . . . Harvard men mutter under their breaths when you mention that trio . . . WHIT CUSHING

'Where Were You On This Play?'

Harvard Stops Brown Plays



DENNY GILDEA, Everett High's astute coach, dresses down squad in blackboard drill at high school stadium clubhouse. Everett was upset, 12-0, by Lynn Classical last week, and Denny still can't understand it. Everett can regain its prestige by defeating Malden Saturday, and the former Holy Cross center means to see that his team performs trick.

An injury riddled Crimson football outfit will be the underdog when the Brown Bears come to the Stadium Saturday, for Wes Fesler, Harvard coach who scouted the Tuss McLaughry team against Army last week, brings back word that the Bruins will be tough despite the tie game with Penn on the Harvard records.

"Brown has as tricky an offense as you could wish to see. What is more, they have the backs who really make the yardage," Scout Fesler said today.

Coach Ear Blaik of Dartmouth does better by saying:

"Brown has the third best team in the East."

Harvard's chances seem to depend on the medicos giving an O. K. to blocking back George Heiden and Capt. Joe Gardella.

DOUBTFUL STARTERS

Gardella suffered a severe charley horse in the Princeton game and has been slow rounding into top form. Heiden came out of the Penn game with a bad leg injury. Both are doubtful starters against the Bruins.

The Harvard scouts have given Dick Harlow a detailed set of diagrams of the Brown plays. But, can Harlow mastermind again and bottle up the Bruins?

Harlow held Harmon pretty well in check. Allerdice's passes were stopped by a well-plotted defense and last week the Crimson put on a masterful defensive exhibition to stop Reagan cold. Dick Harlow is now working on a plan to halt the terrific Brown reverses which were so successful in ripping the Army line apart last week.

HARVARD'S MASTER DEFENSE

Till last Saturday Tuss's team was a minus quality when it came to an aerial attack, but Ernie Savigianno of Newton did some fine tossing against the Kaydets and a pass was responsible for the margin of victory.

Harvard was sent through a lengthy drill in the cage against the Brown plays and had difficulty in solving them at first, but toward the end of the session Dick Harlow was more satisfied with the team's play.

If Heiden is unable to participate Saturday, Loren MacKinney will be at the blocking back position and Soph Bill Barnes will fill the left end post. The rest of the lineup will be the same as the iron man outfit against Penn.

BROWN WORKS INDOORS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13 (INS)—An indoor defensive practice session today had featured Brown University football practice, the players were driven indoors by the rain.

Abington High Still Remembers 1923

Abington High mauled a hard fighting Rockland eleven last Saturday afternoon, as many of you already know. Rockland has been unable to gain a verdict over their traditional foes, Abington, since 1923.

In that year Abington was slated for national honors and a post season game with an out of state team. Their final game of the season was against Rockland. And Rockland handed the cocky Abington outfit a thorough pounding to discourage all aspirations of a post season battle.

Present Head Mentor Charlie Walsh was a stalwart on that ill fated Abington squad.

Don Plausse, star Whitman quarterback, made the play of the week when he booted a field goal, in the third period, to provide the margin of victory over North Quincy high.

Weymouth's line was opening holes as large as the Sumner Tunnel for their backs to go skipping through at Stone Park, Dedham. This important win placed Weymouth in the top position in Class C ranks and placed it far ahead of her nearest rivals, Dedham and Plymouth.

Harry Arlanson's Weymouth aggregation has only two more games, the next against Plymouth and the last against Hingham.

* * *

Scituate High won its fifth straight game of the campaign when it humbled Hanover High. Everett Dorr, Scituate climax runner, accounted for 177 of Scituate's total yardage.

He also tossed two touchdown passes and converted three points after touchdown. Bob Whittaker, Scituate center, played one of the best defensive games seen on the South Shore in many a day.

The Marshfield-Cohasset game lived up to all expectations. It was a hard, bruising game from start to finish. Bill Ripley's Cohasset boys led until the last period when G. Keith intercepted a Cohasset pass on the mid-stripe to romp for the deciding score.

and were rewarded with another goal, which Earl Seibert scored assisted by Phil Hergesheimer and Doug Bentley. That proved to be the deciding marker, for the other two goals were made by Bill Hollett and Eddie Wiseman.

With time rapidly expiring, the Bruins skated all over the Hawks and as stated above Bobby Bauer missed tieing up the game by a fraction of an inch.

In the event that they continue to play the wide open hockey they displayed last night, the Bruins can lose plenty of games without receiving any serious complaints from the real fans.

Before the game, Pres. Frank Calder presented Capt. "Dit" Clapper with the N. H. L. pennant, Bobby Bauer with the Lady Byng Trophy and the Bruins with their medals for winning the 1939-40 title. . . . Vic Polich, the Pics' goalie, is a brother of Jack, of the Philadelphia Ramblers . . . The lower boxes were protected by a screen . . .

Bobby Knowles, the well known amateur golfer lost a hat during the game . . . Mickie Ion had an off night . . . He was in the path of two pucks . . . Ag Smith was nicked on a clearance shot and is limping around on a lame knee today . . . Eddie Cummings' "Five minutes," "Ten Minutes" and "Fifteen Minutes" announcements sounded like a Paul Bowser wrestling show . . . The clock was out of commission.

Dit Clapper is still handicapped by the ankle injury he received during the Les Canadiens' game in Montreal . . . Was Herbie Cain's face red, when he passed right on the blade of Mush March's stick and the veteran right winger scored the first goal of the game . . . Big Jack Portland, the former Bruin, and Cowboy Bill Cowley engaged in a roughing match and Large John drew the penalty . . . On two successive Chicago rushes in the first period Frankie Brimsek robbed Johnny Chad and Bill Carse of goals.

Jack Crawford came within a great save by Paul Goodman of tallying just before the end of the first period . . . Harry Allen made new ice between each period . . . It was slow on the first try but on the next it required only 15 minutes by the watch . . Sunday night Ice-Maker Allen will have two instead of one machine to lay the new surfaces . . . In the second period, Phil Hergesheimer back-handed a shot that really tested Brimsek . . . Then Jack Crawford and Cully Dahlstrom engaged in a private feud . . . It was overlooked by the officials.

The Bruins didn't score until Doug Bentley drew a penalty . . . Bill Hollett was flying last night . . . He's a handy man to have around . . . Late in the second period players on both clubs tired and the pace slowed down . . . Johnny Chad attempted to give Frankie Brimsek the business while standing in the crease . . . "Dit" Clapper stepped in and it looked like fisticuffs for a few moments . . . It was a "top heavy" house . . . Rain spoiled the attendance, which was about 8000.

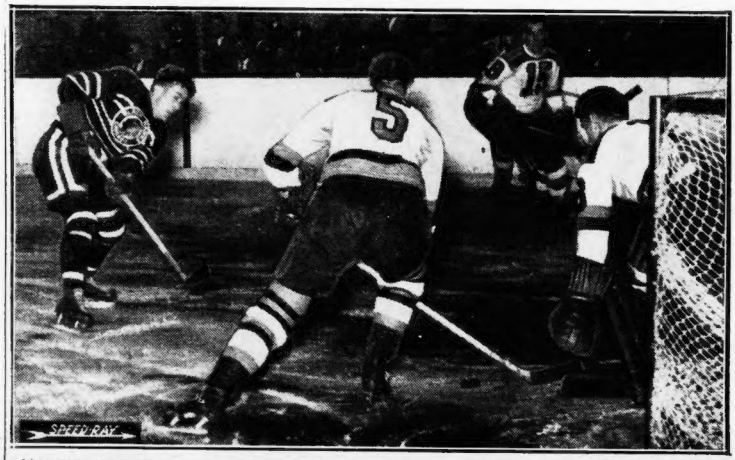
On George Allen's third period goal the Bruins protested that the puck had entered the net through the side . . . Pep Kelly, former Maple Leaf, didn't get into the game until the third period . . . Art Ross thinks that the breaks favored the Hawks . . . Weston Adams was perfectly satisfied that both clubs played wide open hockey . . . And, the fans were also well satisfied . . . Only on very rare occasions do they sit in on N. H. L. games which produce 11 goals . . . Johnny Gottselig, who has retired from active service, sat in the box with the penalty timers . . . Coach Cooney Weiland called Frankie Brimsek off the ice with 40 seconds to go in the final period . . . But, he sent him back just as soon as Eddie Wiseman scored the fifth and final goal . . .

Revere AZA Quintet Plays Quincy Chapter

The second in a series of weekly basketball games will be held Saturday night at the Garfield Jr. high school gym, Revere, when the Revere AZA play host to the Quincy chapter. Between halves, Pat Santo, former Revere lightweight, will have his amateur stable present for a boxing exhibition.

POWER PLAY—Bruins pile up Hawk goalie, Paul Goodman, in the third period and slip in a goal. Mel Hill waves a high stick in the foreground while teammate Bill Cowley battles it out close to the ice with the goalie. Charlie Conacher, hidden in the picture, got the point.

STOPPED—Milt Schmidt of Bruins is halted at the lip of the goal in a third period surge by the entire Blackhawk team in as wild a scoring contest that the Garden has seen in many a year. The disc is shown bounding away harmlessly from Milt's stick as the Hawks belt him out of the picture.



HAWKS SCORE—George Allen of Hawks swoops in on Bruins' goal in the second period and let drive the rubber that slips past the sticks of Clapper (No. 5) and Goalie Frankie Brimsek. Milt Schmidt (No. 15) is in the background. Bruins lost, 6 to 5.

RULES GOVERNING THE FOOTBALL CONTEST

NO. 8

The object of the Daily Record-American Football Contest is to select winners of twenty collegiate football games to be played each Saturday. Anyone may enter the contest excepting employes of the Record-American and their families

The selections are listed on the chart here which is ready to be filled out by the contestant. Simply place an (X) in the space nearest the name of the team you think will win or if you predict a tie game place the letter (T) in the spaces nearest the names of the tying teams.

Calculate the AVERAGE score of all competing teams, except that for which you predict a tie score. Write winners and losers average score in space provided in coupon. Do not write individual scores in spaces or on the coupon. Indicate average scores only by adding scores of all teams and then divide the total by the number of teams competing.

Only ONE solution may be entered by a contestant. All entries must be in the office of the Record-American not later than Midnight Friday the day before the games.

You need not buy a copy of the Record or American to enter this contest. Tracings of the contest form may be made from copies in the public library or in the Record-American office. Such entries will be acceptable and given equal consideration with those clipped from these newspapers.

A prize of $100.00 will be awarded the person whose entries contain all selections correct. If more than one person submits perfect solutions $100.00 will be awarded the tying contestant whose average score tabulations most nearly match with actual average scores on the games. If no perfect list of solutions is entered $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest number of selections correct and should two or more contestants tie for this prize the tying contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct solutions and should two or more contestants tie for this prize, tying contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Twenty-five awards of $1.00 each will be given the twenty-five contestants whose entries contain in succession, the next largest number of correct solutions and whose average scores most nearly match the actual scores of the games.

Winners of each week's contest will be announced on the Monday, nine days after the games. The decision of the judges in all cases shall be final.

Mail all entries to the Record-American Football Contest Editor, P. O. Box 1897, Boston, Mass.

In the event of postponement of any of the games, such games will automatically be excluded from the contest in the event that the planned date of any game scheduled is changed, then that game is automatically excluded

THURRIER, HUNT LEAD IN SCORING

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 13 (AP)—The Springfield Indians' two Freds, Thurrier and Hunt, have scored between them exactly half the goals credited to the Indians, leaders of the Eastern division of the American Hockey League, and that puts them at the top of the list of the circuit's high scorers.

Each has found the opposition net four times, but Thurrier rates the No. 1 spot at the head of the list because he has five assists to four for Hunt.

In No. 3 position, and top man for the western division, is Lloyd Roubell of the Pittsburgh Hornets. He also has four goals, but only three assists for seven points.

Three players are tied with six points each, Gordon Bruce and Pat McReavy, both of whom get their pay checks from the Hershey Bears, and Glen Brydson, another Springfield Indian.

The league's most penalized performer to date is Vic Myles of the New Haven Eagles who has been exiled a total of 15 minutes in five games.

The leading scorers:

	Goals	Assists	Pts.
Thurrier, Springfield	4	5	9
Hunt, Springfield	4	4	8
Roubell, Pitsburgh	4	3	7
Bruce, Hershey	4	2	6
Brydson, Springfield	3	3	6
Summerhill, Cleveland	4	1	5
Ebeomb, Indianapolis	3	2	5
Bentley, Providence	3	2	5

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

HAW, SNOFF, MY MAN;—PUFFLE TOWERS IS TRANQUIL ONCE MORE!—THE CHELSEA VASE CAME OFF ROBIN'S THUMB!—THE ICE-CUBES SHRANK HIS THUMB, AND THEN MISS MEEKER, MY WIFE'S DRESSMAKER, GOT THE VASE OFF WITH SOAPY WATER!—YES, AND AS YOU SAID, THERE WAS A SMALL SPIDER IN THE VASE THAT BIT HIS THUMB!
NOW THAT MY THUMB IS OUT IN CIRCULATION AGAIN, CAROLINE, AH, I MEAN-MISS MEEKER, I'D LIKE TO TAKE YOU OUT FOR A SNACK OF CHOP SUEY AND SEE A MOVIE!—WHAT SAY?
HMM—SHE'S A NEAT LITTLE NUMBER!
OH,—YOUR THANKS IS ENOUGH!
HE HAS SUCH ROMANTIC, SAD EYES!
CAN THIS BE ROMANCE?

FAIR SNOWS RAIN CLOUDY

A NOTABLE RECOVERY IN LONDON

Babe in Wreckage This London baby retrieves her favorite toy from the wreckage of her home. This picture, obviously posed for British propaganda purposes, is nevertheless representative of conditions in the bomb-battered English capital where civilian casualties are appalling. Pictures like these are among the reasons why 50 per cent of American defense production will go to Britain, why the U. S. Army's secret Sperry bombsight has been given to the Royal Air Force and why Canadian fliers will be permitted to attend navigation school in Florida this winter.
